NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

Georgia Matters of Interest-The Day in Departments-Work in All Branches of the Government.

Washington, June 8 .- (Special.)-Presilent Cleveland told a member of congress eday that under no circumstances would here be an issue of bonds unless especially thorized by congress. The administration he said, was not responsible for the present peial situation and it lay with congress ed not with the administration to find remedy for it. The opinion is held largely by a number of congressmen here that an issue of bonds will be forced unless Mr. Cleveland reconsiders his determiand fixes an earlier date. The Collectorship.

Judge Turner made a few official calls today, but none of special significance. It would take something in the nature of an earthquake, though, to be of any special significance to the eleventh's man. He made no move in the collectorship race, at any rate. A damper has been thrown on the aspirations of Clements's friends, it is understood, by a remark credited to Mr. Carlisle that he had given Trammell assurance that he would be appointed to the post. Judge Turner hopes, possibly, though, to get a reversion of this decision in a higher court. As yet, Tgammell's friends are not afraid.

The Savannah Postoffice.

Representative Lester had a talk with Cleveland today about the Savannah postoffice. Doyle's term is not out for a year, and Lester got little encouragement that he would be removed before its expiration. Lester declines to say whom he has endorsed, and intimates that he has endorsed nobody, as yet.

"It will be time enough to talk about whom I will endorse when I see any chance of getting Doyle out," he said.

Cholera in Asiatle Turkey. Surgeon General Wyman, of the marine hospital service, today received a dispatch from Mr. Newberry, the United States charge d'affaires at Constantinople, dated from Pera, relative to the cholera outbreak in Asiatic Turkey, which stated: "Latest news shows a rapid spread westward into Mesapotamia trade routes. This will soor bring in the Mediterranean ports."

The Fishing Has Been Good. The official records of the postoffice department shows that during the first three months of the present administration, ended June 3d, the total number of fourth-class postmasters appointed were 6,537, of which 4,672 were to fill vacancies caused by resignations and death and 1,885 by removals. During the corresponding period in Mr. Harrison's administration the total number appointed was 8,225, or 1,686 more than were appointed during the last three months. Of these 2,659 were to fill vacancies caused by resignations and death and 5,567 by removals. The number of ap-pointments made on registrations was, therefore, 2,013 greater during the first quarter of the present administration than during the last. In the Department of Justice. Attorney General Olney has appointed A. G. Stafford special assistant to the United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois, to aid in investigating the alleged violations of the interstate commerce law. Mr. Stafford is at present employed in the interstate commerce commission. He has also appointed Edward Baxter assistant to the United States district attorney for the middle district of Tennessee to assist in the prosecution of the case grow-ing out of the failure of the Commercial National bank, of Nashville, Tenn.

Secretary Carlisle today appointed Worthington Ford, of New York, chief of the bureau of statistics of the treasury department. Mr. Ford is about forty years of age, and during the last Cleveland administration served as chief of the bureau of statistics of the department of state. Mr. Ford is appointed to his present position on the recommendation of Edward Atkinson and Davis A. Wells. He is said to be worth nearly $1,000,000, inherited recently from his father's estate.

For the Presidency Is Made by Sanguine Buckeye Republicans.

M'KINLEY A CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

And He Thinks That Means a Stepping Stone to the Presidential Chair-He and the Duke the Star Attractions.

Columbus, O., June 8.-With superb eloquence Governor McKinley today received the laurels of success, a presage, his friends profess to believe, of higher honors to come. The great high tariff advocate was in magnificent form, and in accepting a renomination as republican candidate for chief magistrate of Ohio he virtually outlined a declaration of principles by which he may be judged as a candidate for the presidency.

Circumstances seemed to conspire to make the occasion suspicious. A brilliant throng, including bevies of gaily-dressed ladies, was present in the convention half to witness the rare double spectacle antici-pated—the latest triumph of the popular governor and the reception of the Spanish duke for the first time in an American political convention. Outside the halls the streets were bright with red, white and blue of American and the yellow and red of Spain. The booming of cannon in the statehouse grounds mingled harmoniously with the strains of the convention orches-tra. Scarcely less noticeable were the signs of political concord among the sometimes clashing elements composing the conven-tion. The permanent chairmanship of the body, after much sharp preliminary skirm-ishing, had been relinquished in the end without bitterness or battle royal, whether willingly or unwillingly, to a pronounced adherent of McKinley's alleged enemies, while the chairmanship of the new state central committee fell in similar fashion to an undoubted admirer of the governor.

After prayer by the Rev. Dr. N. H. Permanent Chairman Harry Daugherty was introduced. He said in the Daugherty was introduced. He said in the course of his remarks:

"We are not despondent and do not believe that the devil and the democratic party can destroy the country while the republican party lives to fight them both. Our good women of this country can bell enough chickens and eggs alone to break the Bank of England, and in addition to that pay the country's defenders liberal and deserving pensions ungrudgingly. I thank you for this honor and await the pleasure of the convention."

Chairman Daugaerty was heartly can be and edd.

The climax of the convention now rapidly approached. The duke of Veragua entered the hall and, amid a salve of applause, was given a seat of honor in a box near the stage. He was accompanied by the duchess and others of his party. Their escort, Commander Dickinson, was in full uniform.

It was at this interesting juncture that the nomination of McKinley was made. oClonel Dick Nevins, of Dayton, in an eloquent address, put his name before the convention, and it was soon seconded by a dozen others. The nomination was by acclamation and went through with a rush. any of the delegates rising to their feet The president today made the following and to the evident amazement of the ducal

A committee was at once dispatched to notify the governor.

In the interim Lieutenant Governor Haristic modesty.

The report of the committee on resolutions was read. It was the usual endorsement of the party, of Harrison and of McKinley; endorsed some of the acts of the last legis lature as a means of catching votes; and then, in its tariff plank, said: We favor the policy of full and adequate protection to American labor and industries. We endorse the action of the assembly that all tariff acts shall protect products of the farm as well as the products of the factory.

The pension plank reads:
We adhere to the republican policy of granting pensions to the wounded and disabled union soldiers and sailors of the late war, and the widows and orphans of such as are de-ceased, and we condemn the unjust policy already made manifest by the present demoeratic administration.

On the subject of finance, the platform says:

We favor honest money, composed of gold, sliver and paper money at equal value and under national and not state regulation. The financial honor of the country must be maintained and its credit unimpaired. The weak and vaciliating course of the present national administration in dealing with the mancial situation meets our condemnation.

THE FIRST ENTRY IN THE GREAT RACE STRONG EVIDENCE AGAINST HER.

But She Still Maintains Her Self-

Which Seemed to Approy the Defendant Some-The Witnesses for the Prosecution on the Stand.

New Bedford, Mass., June 8 .- The courtse was opened before the regular time this morning, and at the main entrane the inquisitive females who had swallowed their breakfasts hurriedly, or dispensed with their entirely, made one of the prettiest rushes ever seen outside of college premises. The local police were carried off their feet and whirled along with resistless force.

Miss Borden was in her seat fifteen ninutes before the court came in, and eager ly looked over the contents of a big officialooking envelope which she afterwards passed to Governor Robinson. All her counsel were early on hand. Just as the court came in and the crief was making his proclamation, Miss Borden was passed to a seat within the enclosure. She was obliged to stand almost beside Judge Blodgett while the crier was talking. The first witness called was Mrs. Churchill, the previous call for Dr. Bowen having been rescinded, but, she not being present,

Dr. Howen was put on. Dr. Bowen, the first witness, stated nothing new, in the direct examination, except to deny that be had ever said Mrs. except to deny that he had ever said Mrs. Borden died of fright or in a faint. Cross-examination by Adams brought out the fact that the witness had prescribed morphine for the prisoner to allay nervous excitement, first in ordinary doses, afterward in double doses, continued to the time of her arrest, and afterwards when in the station house and before the examination at the inquest, and that the morphine prescribed had a tendency to affect the memory and produce hallucination. The examination lasted a little over an hour.

Bridget Sullivan was recalled for recross-examination. She testified that she saw Lizzie in tears when she called her down stairs just after the murder, and

Mrs. Churchill was next called. Nothing Mrs. Churchill was next called. Nothing new developed in Mrs. Churchill's direct examination, but, in cross-examination, she told Robinson that Lizzie was so pale and excited after the murder that her appearance attracted witness's attention from the house. John Cunningham testified and the court John Cunningham testified and the court took a recess. After the recess Cunningham was cross-examined and then George Allen, a policeman of Fall River, was called. On the morning of the murder he went to the house. He went up to the Borden house on the run and picked up another policeman on the way. When he reached the sitting room Mrs. Churchill and Miss Russell were there, so was Dr. Bowen. The sheet had not yet been placed over the body of the dead man. He happened to pass the door and he thought he might as well examine the lock while he was there. He found a night lock and a bolt on the door. The door was both locked and bolted when he made the examination. When he saw Lizzie Borden that morning she was cool and self-possessed. There was a table three feet fram the body he said and the set and self-possessed. There was a table three feet from the body, he said, and there was no trace of blood on it.

That Bloody Handkerchief.

Then came another surprise from the pros ecution and one that caused the heavy, dull features of the defendant to grow ashy white. It was a handkerchief dark and dirty and half destroyed. It looked as if an attempt had been made to burn it. The careless way in which Assistant Attorney carcless way in which Assistant Attorney Moody brought the handkerchief into the case was interesting in itself. He seemed to be about to sit down, having finished with the witness to all appearances. Then he walked back to the table.

"Mr. Allen," he said, "did you find anything while you were up stairs?"

"Yes, I did."

"What was it?"

"A handkerchief."

"Where did you find it?"

"I foun, it lying a little way from Mrs. Borden's feet, between her feet and the window."

"Were there any marks on it?"

"Were there any marks on it?"
Then came the answer that caused the risoner to look as if she was about to col-

"That's all," said the district attorney quietly, a all," said the produce a bit of evidence like that. During the time that the handkerchief was talked about the prisoner picked at the tips of one glove with the other hand. When ex-Governor, Robinson, gross-graming, Allen talked about the prisoner picked at the tips of one glove with the other hand. When ex-Governor Robinson cross-examined Allev he did not ask a question about the bloody handkerchief.

Officer Allen, together with Sheriff Wixon, ther testified to their search of the Borden premiss, after the murder.

Then Officer Fleet was put on the stand. After corroborating their testimony he described his finding the handleless hatchet, produced by Mr. Moody in the opening. This hatchet was found on the day of the murder in the box next the chimpey, down in the cellar. Fragments of the handle showed a fresh break and the iron was covered with ashes. The manner in which the ashes or dust anneared in the cut indicated that an effort had been made to have the break annear like an old one. Dutside the cellar door was locked. Fleet went to the harn. It was very hot there. There was a let of hav that covered nearly all the north side of the barn. He remained in the hav in order to make sure if any one was hidden in it.

"Were you looking for blood?" "Yes."

A RED-HOT REPORT

Concerning the Way Tennessee Affairs Have Been Conducted.

Nashville, Tenn., June 8 .- (Special.)-The legislative committee, which has been working on the books of the comptroller and treasurer for the past four months. completed its report this afternoon. It will go to the public printer tomorrow, and will make a book of one hundred pages.

The report is probably the most sensational document ever prepared in this state. The grossest disregard for law is charged against ex-Governor Buchanan, ex-Treasurer House and ex-Comptroller Allen, composing the finding of the board for two years previous to last January. This board paid out, it is charged, large and illegal commissions to various persons to place $1,500,000 of bonds, and then allowed Wolffe, a New York broker, who had put up a forfeit to take the bonds. to slip his contract and take tess than one third of the number. The other million was anlowed to lie in the National Bank of the Kepublic, Frank Porterlield having power to negotiate them, and, therefore, naving control of them. The committee does not find positively that these bonds were hypothecated by Porterfield, but says that Loobins and Martin, of the firm of Dobbins & Dazey, swore that Dazey said; Those bonds have got to be redeemed. The legislature, two years ago, appropriated $5,000 for the survey of Forker Deer canal, and there is no intelligent record of how this money was spent.

Comptroller Allen is scored for depositing state money in banks in his own name, and also Governor Buchanan for allowing him to state money in banks in his own name, and also Governor Buchanan for allowing him to do so, he himself having signed the bill prohibiting such action. The direct tax commission kept no record of the money they paid out or of the fees they kept. The railroad tax assessors charged excessive expenses to the state in many instances. The treasurer disregarded the law prohibiting the deposit of state money in a bank to an amount exceeding one-fourth of its capital stock. In one instance more state money was in a bank than the bank had capital stock.

A long list is given of officials who overdrew their salaries. It is shown that Judge Turney, on January 1, 1891, overdrew his salary by $100, and that this amount has never been paid back to the state. It is shown that House and Allen again and again violated explicit statutes, and that they handled the state's money as if it grew on trees.

The recommendations of the committee are that the governor proceed against these officers for all money they received above what the law allows.

The ducal party rested until 2 o'clock p. m., when they were escorted to a grand gtand on Broad street, at the north of the capitol, where a parade of about 13,000 school children passed, each pupil carrying a small United States flag. The children, having been massed in shady streets within three squares, had but a short distance to march, breaking ranks immediately after passing the reviewing stand, taking street cars, in breaking ranks immediately after passing the reviewing stand, taking street cars, in which way they were brought to the reviewing ground. During the exericises on the reviewing stand the duke was welcomed by Mayor Karb and presented with the freedom of the city, and a solid gold key, nicely ornamented and inscribed: "Christopher Columbus, 1492, Columbus, Ohio, 1893." The duke briefly thanked the mayor for the courtesies of the occasion.

Creditors.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 8.—D. B. Loveman, one of the leading dry goods merchants of the south, has failed. He named as assignees, Hon. H. Clay Evans, of Chattanooga, late first assistant postmaster general, and Louis Black, of Cleveland, O. The deed of trust conveys his entire estate, real and personal, including a number of tracts of land in the city and suburbs. The preferred creditors and the amounts due them make up a list of thirty individuals, firms and corporations and an aggregate indebtedness of $131.786. In the list is the Central National bank, of New York, for the sum of $25,000.

the Central National bank, of New York, for the sum of $25,000.

In addition to the preferred creditors are the general creditors chiefly in New York. The list has not yet been made public, but the amount will certainly be a heavy one. The assets, which will embrace everything that Mr. Loveman possesses, including the home and his household furniture, which are embraced in the trust deed, will aggregate over $350,000. All the local banks and local creditors are amply protected. The failure is due to the curtailment of credit by the stringency in financial circles, failing business and poor collections, also to heavy losses sustained in a fire eighteen months "go.

A Belief That Uncle Sam Will Establish a Protectorate.

MR. BLOUNT HAS GIVEN AN INKLING

That This Will Be Done Before Very Long.

ATTEMPT TO KILL THE EX-QUEEN

Suspicious Men Caught Lurking About Her Residence, and Dynamite Bombs Found Near By.

Henolula, June 1 .- No one knows how or when, but the fact remains that the an-nexation party of Hawaii have settled it in their own minds that the United States s going to establish a protectorate over the islands. Annexation, except as some-thing in the future, is not now discussed, and the cry, "annexation or nothing," is no longer heard.

It is reported that Minister Blount has dropped a hint that a protectorate is the proper thing to look for. If the constant protest of the royalists are to be believed, they have no intention of making a move until after the decision of the United States is known. So far, Claus Speckels has not gained much by his efforts to embarrass the government financially. Minister of Finance Damon betrays no concern about the matter. Retaliation is now being discussed. There is talk of stopping the subtreasury of $1,000 per month paid the Speckels oceanic steamship line. There was a time when the Oceanic line was of

was a time when the Oceanic line was of great value to Hawaii, but now, that the new Canadian Pacific line, the Pacific Mail and the Occidental and Oriental steamship companies make Honolula, they do not now need the Oceanic.

Honolula had a genuine dynamite scare last night. During a concert at the Hawaiian hotel, at which most of the people of the town were assembled, policemen saw three persons acting in a suspicious manner near the ex-queen's residence. When ordered to halt, two of them drove off in a hack and the third ran away in the darkness. Near where the man on foot was seen, the officers discovered three dynamite bombs and a small bottle of dynamite bombs and a small bottle of foot was seen, the officers discovered three dynamite bombs and a small bottle of mercury.

Company B, of the volunteers, was at once called out and guarded the place all night. It is thought that the bombs were to have been used to blow up the barracks in which the provisional army was sleeping. Fresident Dole, when seen, stated that he thought the finding of the bombs was proof of the reported conspiracy to restore the queen, as did Attorney General Smith. The royalists are indignant at the assertion. The government has quietly been organizing three more companies of volunteer soldiers.

Although no official news has yet been made public, it is stated that the government has received private letters from Washington assuring them that a protectorate will be established by the United States. Ex-Queen Liluokalani is preparing a lengthy statement to be given to Minister Blount. It recites the history of her short reign, the causes leading to her downfall, and gives her views as to the unjustness of her treatment by the provisional government.

of the federal bench, ordered today that an injunction be issued restraining the officials of the world's fair from opening the gates of Jackson park on Sunday. Judge Grossend dissented and in his finding recommended that the injunction be not granted. For the first time probably in the history of United States district courts a bench of three judges failed to arrive at a majority finding, each of the two judges who granted the injunction taking actions on widely diverging grounds and the dissenting judge differing radically from both.

Judge Woods spoke first, and said that the court would pass upon the motion for injunction made by the United States against the World's Columbian Exposition Company to compel it to close the gates on Sunday. He announced that he and his associates entertained different views on certain important points and that each judge would formulate his ideas in an individual opinion. The jurist then read his own opinion, in which he concluded that Jackson park was lawfully devoted to exposition purposes, and that the liqunction should be granted as prayed for. He found that the exposition had been, in fact, truned over to the control of the federal government by its corporation and that the control was therefore in the government's courted. He held that the Sunday closing condition and the souvenir coin grant did not constitute a contract and the Sunday rule, having once been passed by the directory and approved by the national commission, the directory had no authority to reconsider it. He held that the Sunday closing condition and the souvenir coins which it retained, and that the people had no right of entry into the park because they had handed the government and help in the park because they had handed the government and only a qualified possession of the exposition, but said the case did not hinge on that question. He held that the Sunday closing condition was not a question of creed or religious belief, but a matter of scientific research, that man required one day in the week for

ATLANTA BANKS WELL REPRESENTED.

The Association Expresses Its Views on Financial Matters-Wanted, a Subtreasury for Georgia,

Savannah, Ga., June 8 .- (Special.)-The second annual convention of the Georgia Bankers' Association assembled in the banquet hall of the DeSoto at half-past 10

'clock this morning.

There were about 100 delegates and guests present. Atlanta was represented by Captain Robert J. Lowry, Major John B. Fitten, Mr. T. B. Neal and Mr. Aaron

President M. B. Lane, of Savannah called the convention to order and, after prayer by Rev. S. A. Goodwin, the roll call showed a large attendance of dele-gates, nearly every banking house belonging to the association being represented.

Colonel C. H. Olmstead welcomed the delegates to Savannah, and Mr. James T. Davis rendered the thanks of the convention for the warm hospitality with which they had been received. The report of the secretary, L. P. Hill-yer, of Macon, showed that the association, organized at Macon, had fifty members. This number had since been increased to ninety-six, but afterwards decreased to ninety-one by five failures, three of which were in Brunswick. Four interesting papers were read by delegates on current financial and banking topics. "Security of Savings," by William Slade, of Columbus, presented some excellent ideas on sound money. F. S. Etheridge in his paper, "Country Banks and Bankers," hit point fallacy a heavy blow. James H. Hunter, of Savannah, presented some good ideas on credits. Captain R. J. Lowry told about in Georgia from the time of the De Boto invasion up to date.

Mr. T. B. Neal, representing the clearing house of Atlanta, offered a resolution pass ed by that body a few days ago, asking the repeal of the Sherman silver law. The mo tion brought on much discussion until finally Mr. Neal made a motion that his resolution and one introduced by R. F. Burdel, of the Savannah clearing house, be referred to a committee of one from each congressional district. The committee considered the resolutions and brought in one to the effect that Georgia's senators and representatives in congress be requested to use every ef-fort to urge the repeal of the Sherman silver law, which, the resolution held, was of great injury to the financial and commer-cial interests of our country. The resolution also favored free coinage of all the silver people can use provided each dol lar shall contain enough silver to purchase 100 cents worth of gold anywhere in the world. A copy of the resolution will be sent to President Cleveland.

A resolution was introduced by R. F. Burdell that the administration be memo-fialized by the Georgia bankers to establish a subtreasury in Savannah. This brought considerable discussion from the Atlanta bankers. Captain Lowry thought it all right except as to the locality. It was finally amended to read "for Georgia," so that it could be leasted to the control of the country of the control of the country of th amended to read "for Georgia," so that it could be located at the option of the president. It was referred to will be acted on tomorro The bankers went down to Tybee this afternoon to enjoy a banquet at the seaside. They returned to the city at midnight.

THE PRINCESS AT THE FAIR. Eulalie Amazed at the Splendor of the Exposition. Chicago, June 8 .- No woman was ever honored with a grander greeting or more cordial welcome than that accorded Maria Eulalie, the infanta of Spain, upon her arrival at the World's Columbian exposi-tion today. No less than 150,000 were on the ground and this mighty host was rep-resentative of every nation of people from the arctic regions to the equator, and all did homage to the little woman from Spain, and from the time of her arrival until she left the White City, this democratic member of Spain's royal house showed by every act that she tuily appreciated the hon-or shown her and the grandeur of the sights she saw. It was the first visit of the infanta to the fair. The grandeur of the glistening white palaces and buildings the time the royal guest entered t gates until she arrived at the administration building her face wore the expression of one lost in amazement. Sheba's fair queen, on the occasion of her historic visit to the court of Solomon, king of the Jews, to the court of Solomon, king of the Jews, was not more amazed at the oriental splendor maintained by the wise monarch than was Maria Eulalie, the infanta of Spain, this morning when she made her first visit to the White City in Jackson park. It was a beautiful day. A mild, refreshing wind blew from the southwest and the deep blue sky wore white silvery clouds. The White City never looked more attractive and the buildings never appeared at better and the buildings never appeared at better advantage. Flags of every nation were waving their gorgeous colors in the bright sunlight and thousands of gay streamers floated joyously in the gentle breeze.

Archbishop Zembratowitz.

Vienna, June 8.—Archbishop Zembratowitz was mobbed by forty polish students in Lumburg today, in view of his visit to the pope, which the Polish regarded as treason to the Catholic church, of which he is a prelate. The archbishop was driving to the railway station from his house when the students attacked him. They threw three rotten eggs at the archbishop and his conchman stopped the horses and they tried to climb into the carriage. Five men reached over the doors and hit the archbishop with their canes, while others tossed dirt, eggs and vegetables over his back. The archbishop was caught twice by the collar and was half dragged from the carriage, but each time tore his—fit loose. The police attacked the students, ar sted nineteen of them and drove the rest away.

Be Delivered TONIGHT AT WEST END ACADEMY. There Are Six Pupils Who Will Graduate Tonight-The Exercises Will Be Especially Interesting.

The commencement exercises of the West End academy will occur tonight, and the me is one of especial interest. The graduating class this year is unusually mall, but in brightness it has never been excelled by any previous one.

The members of the graduating class are as follows: Miss Lucile Smith, Miss Jennie Shannon, Miss Scottle Wimbish, Miss Mabelle Shropshire. Mr. Oscar Venable and Mr. Thomas Cheatham. The young ladies succeeded in capturing first honor, but the entire class dld so well that there is very little dis-

Not the least interesting feature of the programme will be the delivery of the alumni dals by the members of the alumni society of the academy. The members of the graduating class took a dictation in order that the respective merits of the students might be obtained in this way. The judges have decided the two winners, but the names will not be known until tonight. The medals are both valuable and can be worn with pride by the persons winning them.

As a matter of course the contest has created especial interest among the graduates and their friends, and it is to be hoped that the young gentlemen retrieved themselves by winning both medals. It is highly probable they were won by young ladies, lowever. But the entire matter is one of conjecture until the names of the winners are called out on the stage tonight.

The diplomas will be delivered by Mr. Burgess Smith, president of the board of trus-tees of the West End academy. Mr. Smith is a gentleman who has always taken the greatest interest in the academy and who has ne everything in his power to forward its interests under all circumstances.

The salutatory will be read by Miss Jennie Shannon, first honor; and the valedictory will be read by the young lady who divided first honor with her, Miss Lucile Smith. The Programme.

THE DOUGLASVILLE COLLEGE.

Closing Exercises at This Institute Were Held Yesterday.

Douglasville, June 8.—(Special.)—The closing exercises of the Douglasville college have been in progress since Sunday and the crowds in attendance have been exceedingly beyond the capacity of the college hall. The people of Douglas county take great pride in the work and fame of their now notable college and are on hand to enjoy the proceedings that mark the close of a most successful year's labors.

Besides the very admirable work shown by the students in the various departments, evincing in them great industry and careful training, there have been special features on the programme that have attracted the peo-ple from all over the country and from nearby

Another Dead Robber.

Rogers, Ark., June 8 .- At 8 o'clock this evening a courier from Maysville, Ark., reported that a dead man, supposed to be one of the Bentonville robbers, was found near where the robbers were encamped Tuesday, where the robbers were encamped Tuesday, about five miles from the state line. Near there is a farm house where the robbers secured supper, limment and bandages, saying that one of their party accidentally shot himself. Yesterday three of the robbers were seen at Claremore, I. T. which seems to confirm the report that three of the gang were so badly wounded that they were unable to travel. Rewards amounting to $2,500, are offered for their capture, and half of the money recaptured, and it is thought that this will induce a great effort for thir capture.

The Highwayman Escaped.

Visalie, Cal., June 8 .- Last night Sheriff Kay received information that Evans and Kay received information that Evans and Softleigh, the highwaymen, were in town. He did not make a night attack, fearing a repetition of the last fight. At 12 o'clock he received word that the men were at the Evans house. A posse of 100 men was organized and the house surrounded, and the sheriff, accompanied by a nephew of Evans's, went to the house, but the men were not found. The home of Mrs. Byrd Evans, the mother-in-law, was also visited, but the desperadoes were not there. Sheriff Kay is satisfied the bandits have left though it may be possible that they were there last night.

A DESPERATE FIGHT DR. MARTIN'S WORK

The First of the Games with Birming- Between a Ware County Convict and One Eleven Conversions at the Tabernas of the Guards.

WITH KNIFE, HOE AND PISTOL

The Convict Attacks the Guard and Is Shot to Death-Great Excitement at Waycross.

Waycross, Ga., June S .- (Special.)-Harrison Graham, the convict who committed three robberies in this city a few weeks ago and was sentenced to one year in the city chaingang, was fatally wounded yesterday at sundown by E. M. Cason, the guard. The chaingang was at work in the ceme tery and a heavy rain caused them to seek shelter in the undertaker's house. Graham asked Cason to lend him his knife, which was done, and the convict began whittling on a stick. Cason was standing at the door and turned his back on the convicts for a moment. When he looked back he saw Graham coming at him with a hoe. He moved his head a little, but received a deep gash in his cheek, the blow knocking him down. Graham grabbed Cason's gun and started to shoot him, but the other convicts came up and overpower-I the desperate Graham, Cason having re covered got on his feet, when Graham managed to aim the gun at him. The con victs held their hands over the trigger and kept the gun from firing.

Graham cursed Cason and said he would ill him, but he failed to do so. Cason drew another pistol from his pocket and fired, the ball entering Graham's right breast.

The wounded convict bled profusely, but was game to the last. He asked for the gun, saying that he wanted to kill Cason. The news of the affair was quickly circulated in the city and men hurried to the scene, fearing trouble from the other convicts. The excitement was increased on account of the wild stories that were told of the affair. Some said t'et the whole chaingang had escaped and were shooting and fighting everybody they met, while others said the cemetery was the scene of a bloody war en citizens and the convicts and Cason had been killed, while others had been shot down. The excitement in the city was at high pitch.

NORTH CAROLINIANS TO MEET .- The North Carolina Society will hold an interesting meeting in room 705, Equitable building, tonight at 8 o'clock. It is hoped that every member will be out. All other North Carolinians who desire to join the society are invited to be present.

GRADY HOSPITAL LIBRARY.—The movement started a few days ago by Dr. Arthur G. Hobbs for the purpose of securing a library for the Grady hospital is meeting with great success. Books, periodicals and newspapers are coming in from every source. This is a movement that should receive the encouragement and support of every person who is interested in Atlauta, or who would like to honor the memory of H. W. Grady. Dr. Hobbs is very sanguine as to its outcome. Any one who knows him has every reason to believe that it will be carried to a successful termination, and before many menths the Grady hospital will have a library of which any institution might be proud. Solendid contributions have been made by Mrs. J. S. Panchen, E. H. Thornton, Max Kutz and B. W. Wrenn. It would be a very easy thing to augment this library from your own if you would only look over your books and see if you cannot spare a dozen or so. You would be doing a great good, not only for jourself, but for people who most need it.

Telegrams were received in the city yesterday to the effect that Villa Maria, the famed convent in Canada, had been burned to the ground. This is the largest convent in the province, schooling about 250 young ladies and about 700 nuns in the adjoining maison mere. The place was founded one hundred years ago, and that the conflagration should have occurred will be a great regret to the United States and an untold loss to Canada.

Miss Leonora and Agatha Sheehan are gradmates of this institution and up to yesterday two other members of the family were in-mates of the school. The wires were kept busy all yesterday afternoon and at a lat hour last evening Miss Claire Sheehan tele graphed that all were safe. W . C. T. U.

The Day in Macon-A Shooting Affray. Judge Bartlett Has a Few Words to Say-Newsy Notes.

Macon, Ga., June 8 .- (Special.)-There is a $5,000 job at Macon waiting for some lawyer. Who will be the gentleman so fortunate as to get it? The late Judge R. Lyon, of this city, was counsel for the Southwestern railroad, a position which he had held about a quarter of a century, up to the day of his death, about two weeks ago. The position pays a salary of $5,000 annum. it is understood that there are several applicants for the place. Among the names mentioned by rumor are Colonel Joe W. Preston, Hon. R. W. Patterson and Marion Erwin, of Macon, Mr. Erwin is the late United States district attorney and is of original counsel with Hon. Dan Rountree in the case of Mrs. Rowena Clarke vs. Central railroad. There may be other possibilities in Macon and elsewhere for the place, but their names have not vet become known. There is a very interesting report to the effect that a strong effort is being made by the friends of Hon. James Guerry, of Dawson, the present able and popular judge of the Pataula superior and popular judge of the Pataula superior the position for and popular large of the ratial asperior couft circuit, to secure the position for him. Of course, if he secures it and is appointed, he will resign the judgeship is appointed, he will resign the judgeship and move to Macon, as the headquarters of the road are located here. The appointment of the Southwestern's attorney, so it is understood, will be made by Lawton & Cunningham, of Savannah, the general equisel of the Central road. The appointment of Judge Querry would make a change in the judiciary and political status of his circuit and district. Of course, there would be a vacancy on the superior court bench of the Paraula circuit which the governor Pataula circuit which the governor have to fill by appointment until the would have to fin by appointment until the legislature meets next October and elects some one. Then again, Judge Guerry has been a prominent and popular figure in his congressional district, with aspirations to go to Washington, and this removal to Macon would give relief to anxious and amiting political hearts. The appointment political hearts. The appointment read will probably be made some time this Oliver Sanders is a well-known colored man of Macon. He has been in the United States railway postal service twenty-one years. He ran for years between Macon and Montgomery, and later between Macon and Palatka. In consequence of his long, faithful and efficient service, and because of his age, about-sixty years, Postmaster General Bissell has directed that Sanders be placed on the run between Macon and Camak. Here the work is much lighter than he has been accustomed to doing. He will receive the same pay, and the postmaster general directs—that Sanders he relieved from all examinations in future. This is the kind and favored way the democratic administration treats faithful servants of long service, even though they are colored and republicans. The recommendation for Sanders's transfer was made by Chief Clark Rehirson. mendation for Sanders's transfer was made by Chief Clerk Robinson, of Atlanta, a

What Burtlett Says. What Bartlett Says.

I asked Judge Bartlett if he had anything to say in reference to the article in today's Constitution about him. Judge Simmons and the Colbert case. The judge replied: "I do not care to say a word about the case. The record speaks for itself. I am not responsible for what the newspapers say about me being a candidate for the supreme bench. I have not authorized any such statement. If I should aspire to a seat on the supreme bench I will notify my friends of the fact in ample time. There is no ill feeling between Judge Simmons and myself, and in my remarks on the Colbert case I did not mention the name of Judge Simmons or that of any other judge on the supreme bench. When Judge Simmons first ran for the supreme bench I was one of his stanchest supporters. I came one of his stanchest supporters. I came from New York where I was visiting and stopped over in Atlanta expressly to aid in Judge Simmons's election. I took off my coat and went to work for him."

INDIAN SPRINGS.

The Lovely and Picturesque Scenery of the Place.

IS A GREAT SANITARIUM,

Where Health Is Regained, and Broken-Down Constitutions Are Made New Again.

Indian Springs, Ga., June 8 .- (Special.)-Three days spent at this resort convinces me that it is not only one of the coolest spots in Georgia, but one of the most picturesque and romantic.

To a lover of nature in its wild and rugged grandeur a picture is revealed that fixes its impress upon memory forever. There is nothing awe-inspiring about the scenery, but it is simply a succession of magnificent heights retreating abruptly and forming at their bases smiling little hollows, every one of which seems to be whispering a legendary story.

The scene that is presented from the winding piazzas of the Wigwam is worthy of the brush of any artist and it can be taken in at one sweep of the eye. The Wigwam crowns the brow of one of the loftiest heights which retreats precipitously to miniature valley. Though this winds like a yellow thread, beautiful Oboothlapoothka to a point where its waters are intersected by those of Oboothlocooska, which come dancing down rocky shoals and turning the wheel of a venerable old mill within a stone's throw of the hotel. Across the valley the eye drinks in another succession of forest crowned hills from the base of which, spanning the valley, is a romantic little foot bridge winding its way to the Wigwam heights. Near by the crystal waters of Indian spring glide noiselessly from their rock-ribbed fountain and mingle with the yellow stream that moves on to the sea. Through the deep forests are winding walks and drives with vistas here and there revealing a burst of sunlight on some of the numerous picturesque cottages embowered in settings of green.

Over all and around all is an atmosphere of restful repose that soothes the nerves and banishes the cares of life. Every breeze and every sunbeam seems to constitute itself your body-servant zealous to contribute a loving and sympathetic caress.

After remaining here a day or two one does not wonder that the transfer of the Indian Springs reservation to Georgia should have occasioned the massacre of its trans feree, General McIntosh, by indignant members of his tribe and it is not at all strange that Georgia threatened to go to war with the federal government, before she would surrender her precious treasure. At any rate, the gratitude of every generation has gone out to our forefathers for perpetuating such a bequest to their descendants.

The historic old hills, nursing the secrets of a century or more, are consecrated with pilgrimages of her sons and daughters to their cool slopes and the life-giving waters that gush from them are lasting tributes of that love. Captain George Collier, whose Wigwam is such a substantial and palatial evidence of his faith in Indian Spring, is daily in receipt of letters testifying to the efficacy of the water. Among these is a characteristic letter from Chief Justice Bleckley, of the supreme court of Georgia. Judge Bleck-ley has been making annual visits to the spring for years, and he is so ardent in his endorsement of the water that his letter will prove interesting reading. It is as follows:

"Atlanta, Ga., October 6, 1892.—George
Collier, Esq. Dear Sir: My personal experience in the use of the water of Indian Spring goes back to the year of 1859-a period of thir y-three years. I have made frequent visits to the spring, and never once without favorable results. And then I remained only a few days, not long enough for saturation. On one occasion, I went there almost a physical wreck from protracted bilious derangement. The irrigation of my system for two or three weeks sprouted a new crop of health. On other occasions, I have been promptly relieved by the same remely for obstinate attacks of indigestion.

"I regard the Indian Spring as a precious treasure bestowed by providence on the state of Georgia, and as one of the most valuable fountains of health in the whole world. My advice to every one is not to die of anything chronic except of old age, without trying this excellent water. Very respectfully, L. E. BLECKLEY."

There is hardly a distinguished resident of Georgia that has not visited Incian Spring, and hundreds of them come here every season. Hon. Pat Walsh, of The Augusta Chronicle, spent several weeks here last season, bringing a large party with from Augusta, and he was delighted with the results of his visit. He is expected here again this season. Captain Evan Howell, of The Constitution, is here so much that he is looked upon as a quasi resident. While here last week he acted as supervising contractor of the beautiful footbridge spanning the valley in front of the Wigwam, and George Collier is anxiously awaiting his return as he has other jobs which he would like to entrust to the grat fibous and 'skillful management of the big-hearted captain.

Colonel H. J. Lamar, the well-known banker of Macon, is also an annual vis-itor to the spring. Speaking of the water he says:

"I have had most positive experience of the virtues of Indian Springs water for more than sixty years. Its analysis shows a combination of soda, sulphur and magnesia not surpassed by any known water. Its effects on the liver, stomach and kid-neys are quick and efficacious, and I have known many most obstinate troubles of the liver and indigestion removed in a few

As I announced yesterday Dr. Payne. our state chemist, is making a new analysis of Indian Springs water, and while making no official report, he says that he has gone far enough to discover that the water is impregnated with lithia, bromine and arsenic, three properties which former analyses do not show. This is a valuable discovery and will precipitate a marked demand for the water. To supply this de mand Captain Collier has arranged to fit up a bottling establishment and will place the water on sale throughout the state.

The inclement weather of the last few days has rather stopped the influx of visitors to the springs for the present, but next week will witness the gathering of large crowds here. The Wigwam is in fine shape for entertaining visitors. Everything has been arranged for the comfort and convenience of guests, and Captain Collier's garden and Jersey farm are the toasts of epicures. Without these adjuncts the appetite superinduced by Indian Springs water, air and sunshine would render the situation serious.

The Senatorial Contest Next Year. Although the election of a United States senator does not occur until a year from next November, sixteen months from the time of this writing, many of our contemporaries are speculating even now upon the contest and suggesting names of various gentlemen as likely to be participants therein.

While it is too soon, of course, to advocate in dead earnest the claims of any one democrat as against all others who may aspire to the position, still there can be no objection to kindly mention of their friends by any of our neighbors. The only criticism we feel like interposing is to the disposition of some of our contemporaries of the state press to assume without question that Senator Colquitt is not to be considered when the time comes for choosing his success-Not that his senatorial career, in whole or in part, is being commented upon adversely, but it seems to be taken for granted in some quarters, that his attack of last summer will either result in his death at an early day or in so complete and permanent a disability as to debar him from entry in another senatorial race.

We submit that this distinguished Georgian is entitled to more consideration from Georgia newspapers. His faithful and efficient service in war and In peace forbids so summary and final a disposition. It will be time enough to drop him altogether from public life when he shall say so, and we feel safe ly whenever, in his judgment, he is no longer able to be the capable and zealous representative of the people he has been for the last ten years in the United in saying that he will say so emphafical-

In writing about these things it is impossible to forget that Senator Colquitt's disability was incurred in defense of his state as directly as if he had been wounded at the head of his On March 4, 1889, for the first time in fourteen years, the republicans controlled president, senate and house of representatives. During the whole of that fifty-first congress, from 1889 to 1891. Senator Brown was confined at home by illness and unable to go to Washington. In these two years with force bills at both ends of the capitol, when the south had more at stake than at any time since reconstruction, Georgia had Colquitt alone to represent her in the senate. In the first session of the fifty-second congress, Senator Gordon's health was so precarious that he was seldom in his seat, and Colquitt again shouldered the burden and assumed the responsibility. Three sessions of this continuous strain brought on the stroke of last July. The recollection of it should be sufficient for us to permit the senator himself to disand in his own way. As the campaign for senator will not open for months, there cannot very well be candidates for some time to come, but if there are, it may be assumed that Senator Colquitt is as much in the race as any one-at least until he assures the people to the contrary.

pose of his own case in his own time

Silver and the Commodities.

Dr. O. T. Kenyon, of Weston, Webster county, sends us the following letter of inquiry:

Editor Constitution—You state in your editorial on silver, 5th instant, that "sixty-four cents" worth of silver sent to India is coined cents worth or suver sent to India is coined into rupees worth something more than a dollar, for the coinage ratio is 15 to 1. In other words, the Indian producer gets an equivalent of more than a dollar in gold for the commodity that the American producer is compelled to seil for 64 cents."

Will you please explain why speculation fails to equalize the value of sliver buillon just as it does cotton, wheat and other products in the several nations? Is there any specific law that bars speculation, if so, where and how is it enforced? where and how is it enforced?

Our correspondent must perceive that if cotton, wheat and other products were deprived of their chief use and function by the United States and the principal nations of Europe, speculation would have little or no effect on their price. The illustration is suggestive merely, and is not intended to cover the case. In fact there is no illustration that fits so well as the plain fact itself-the fact that the banking interests of a dozen nations have robbed the people of more than half the money that was formerly used as a basis of

We presume that the real nub of our correspondent's inquiry is this: If silver is as good as gold in India why does not that fact have an influence on the price of the metal? There are two The first is that silver can only go to India in the ordinary course of trade, and the main channels of trade are controlled by British interests. The second reason is that these interests find their main profit in cheap silver.

The demand for silver in India has never been satiated, but the metal can only go there in the natural course of trade, the channels of which, so far as the United States are concerned, are controlled by London bankers and business men. . These buy India council bills, or rupee paper at a discount equal to the difference between the price of gold and silver, and this difference constitutes their profits. With the rupee paper thus bought they purchase wheat and cotton in India, where the bills, representing silver rupees, are as good as gold, and this wheat and cotton comes in competition with American wheat and cotton, and our farmers are compelled to take for their products the relative price which the British traders pay for India council bills, or rupee paper. This process not only robs the American producers, but gives a bounty to their competitors in India. Having shown clearly why silver does not flow to India in a sufficient volume to have an influence on the price of the bullion, it remains to anticipate the argument that free coinage in the United States would not have an influence on the market price of bullion in Europe. The agents and organs of the gold trust declare that free coinage of silver here will not add to the price of bullion in the European market. But this is a question that would be answered by common sense if it had not already been answered by experience-especially the experience of France. We have said that bullion silver can go to any country only through the regular channels of trade. It cannot flow direct to India from the United States, which is a silver producing country, for the reason that the trade relations of the two countries do not admit of it England is the middle man between the two countries. On the other hand, there are no middlemen between the United States and the European nations, and with free coinage of silver here, the small amount of bullion held in those countries would instantly respond in price to the uplifting power of the law restoring silver to its use and function as a money metal. When the Sherman act was about to become a law, and before the effect of its provisions could be practically understood, silver rose to $1.09 an ounce in New York, and the price of bullion in London made instant response. These facts sweep away the whole fallacious argument of the organs of the gold trust that silver bullion in Europe would not respond to the lifting of the value here.

The "expert financiers" say that the law cannot impart value, and this is true enough when the statement is understood, but the law can restore to silver bullion its use and employment as a money metal, and this, by increasing its use, increases its value until it reaches the market price, or ratio, fixed by the law.

The Party Pledge.

Our dispatches today contain a summary of replies made by congressmen to telegraphic inquiries sent out by The New York World. The inquiries were three in number-"Are you in favor of the repeal of the Sherman law? Are you in favor of an income tax? Are you in favor of the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on state banks of issue?"

We gather from the dispatch containing the information that the replies to the first question are not as satisfactory as The World could wish; and this is natural. Our contemporary might as well ask its subscribers if they are in favor of hanging Mr. John Q. A. Rivers, of Thunder Hill. There are so many considerations surrounding such a question that replies to it could not be successfully tabulated.

It would have been an easy matter for The World to get all the information it wanted if it had framed its first inquiry properly. If it had asked, "Are you in favor of the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law?" it would have found a substantial majority in both houses ready to answer in the negative. If it had asked, "Are you in favor of repealing the Sherman law and carrying out the financial policy set forth in the Chicago platform?" it would have received an affirmative answer from a large majority of democratic congressmen.

All of which leads us to remark that there is a way to get information and a way not to get it. Meanwhile, it would be interesting to know whether The World is in favor of repealing the Sherman law in accordance with the programme of the democratic platform? That is the whole point at issue. Democrats who are opposed to unconditional repeal simply want to carry out the financial pledge of the democratic platform. Is The World in favor of that?

The Trouble in the West.

If the financial experts are not mistaken, the west is suffering and will continue to suffer more than any other section from the prevailing financial depression.

The south has been unconsciously preparing for this state of affairs during several years of low priced cotton. Our bankers and merchants have been forced bankers and merchants have been forced into a conservative policy, and our people have been driven to the closest economy. Credits have been cut down, and while our people may have very little money they are not crushed under the burden of their debts. In the west it is very different. The farmers of that section have been getting good prices for grain and pork, but this year they have a short hog crop and wheat is low, and the people who have been living extravagantly must now pay the piper. The smash up at Sioux City points its own moral. The town lost its head over its brief season of prosperity, and a syndicate raised more than $32,000,000 with which the town was overbuilt and overdeveloped. This money was borrowed in the east, and since the era of financial depression Sloux City has completely collapsed. Elsewhere in the west, in every circle, the financial storm is felt more severely than in any other part of the country. The west is pre-eminently the debtor s tion-in bondage to the east-and it will now be drained of every dollar before the New England and Wall street Shylocks get through.

In the meantime the south is recoing the benefits of the hard economy of the past few years. Our banks and merchants will not go to the wall because they have been cautious in the matter of extending credit, and our farmers will not be sold out for a song because they have lived within their incomes.

When the financial flurry is over the outh will loom up in good shape ready for business. For the present, we are merely lookers-on. We have risked little, and, therefore, cannot lose much,

Killed in Battle.

The Louisville Courier-Journal shows that Governor McKinley was rather careless in the battle statistics presented in his Indianapolis address.

Speaking of the mortality in different wars, the governor said that only 22,000 lives were lost in the revolution and that more than that number had fallen in a single day in our civil war. This would lead people to believe that several hundred thousand soldiers were killed. On the contrary, official figures show that only 67,058 federals lost their lives in battle, and 43,012 more died of their wounds.

As a rule, the mortality was not heavy in our battles. At Gettysburg the federal loss was 3,070 killed in the three days' fight. At the first battle of Bull Run the federals lost 470 killed. The fact that the number of men reported lost is much larger has caused people to suppose that many thousand were killed. The federals lost more than 20,000 men at Gettysburg, but only one-seventh of that number died on the

Now, as the federals had over 2,000,-000 soldiers, first and last, in the war for the union it follows that only about one in twenty was killed or died of his wounds in four years' service. That is not a very high death rate. Indeed, it appears from these figures that it is no more dangerous to go to war chan it is to engage in many peaceful occupations at home. It is all nonsense to suppose that in every great battle men are slaughtered by tens of thousands. The official figures on the union side of our war show that this is a mistake.

A Change for the Better. The outflow of gold has practically ceased. It is a long lane that has no turning, and we have at last reached the turning point. The monetary flurry in London is over and Europe is forced by her drought to take large quantities of American wheat. There is an increasing foreign demand for our raw material and manufactured products, and since the middle of May exporters find it difficult to engage freight room on the vessels going to Europe. Exchange is lower than it was a month ago, and there are unmistakable indications of a change that will put the balance of trade in our favor.

From now on, it is predicted by close observers of the situation, that the countries over the sea will be sending back all the gold they have drawn from us, and hundreds of millions more, to pay for their purchases. Nor will this turn in our favor be only temporary. Europe has short crops this year, and she moreover has 22,000,000 soldiers on a war footing who will have to be fed and clothed. The withdrawal of this enormous host of able-bodied men from all lines of productive industry will necessarily increase the demand for our food stuffs, cotton, wool and leather, and other products which they will be compelled to buy from us.

These encouraging signs of the times should inspire hope and confidence. With the exception of the west, this country's financial and commercial institutions are upox a remarkably sound basis; and in the west it will be a positive benefit to get rid of shaky banking concerns, overboomed towns and greedy land loan companies. Things are adjusting themselves to suit a new and a brighter business era, and in view of the financial and tariff reform legislation which an extra session of congress will begin to map out in September there is every reason to look for good fimes, a revival of commerce and industry and an easy money market.

It seems that we have given the British shipbuilders a case of the Cramps.

Mayor Goodwin Talks.

All of these things were much talked of yesterday, both by the citizens of Atlanta and the people out in West End.

Mayor Goodwin had given the matter

Alayor Goodwin had given the matter a good deal of thought before a Constitution representative called on him and was ready to talk most interestingly on the turn things had taken the mgnt before in the meeting of the West End citizens. Mayor Goodwin sadd:

"While I have no doubt the sentiment of Atlanta has favored the annexation of West End upon perfectly fair terms, yet there is no present movement on the part of the city government of Atlanta looking to this end and if the move pent originates

all I think it ought to do so with the ple of West End and without any special ort on the part of the people of Atlanta, that we ought in good faith to be willing

"No steps have been taken by the Atlanta city government to introduce this subject or to start any agitation of it; and yet, speaking for myself, I was much gratified at expressions of West End people touching a proposed union, and was and will continue to be very glad to consider it frankly and fairly with any and all who may wish to consider it. Atlanta is a great city, and Wost End a splendid community, and each would be mutually benefited by being in all respects united in interests and identity. In anything that may be done looking to a union of the two municipalities no effort should, and I believe will not be made to secure any advantage or to, drive a bargin with the other. What is wanted in such a negotiation is mutual confidence and respect; otherwise it would be idle to reopen the question. I think the advantages to be gained by each would be about equal."

HARRY'S FIRST DAY. How the Festive Prisoner Is Spending His

Time at the Jail. Flowers and smiles were the two big features of Harry Hill's first day in jan, Hill furnishing the smiles and several unknown ladies furnishing the flowers. Hill was in much better spirits during the day than he has been since he reached the city. He was composed and natural, ate more heartily of his meals and stated that he slept fairly well on a jail cot. To a Constitution reporter who inquired after the state of his health, Hill replied cheerily: "Oh. I'm feeling well enough."

"Oh, I'm feeling well enough."

During the day he was transferred to the second floor of the jail and given a room instead of a cell. The room adjoins that of Redwine, but is smaller. It is bare of furniture, a narrow cot and a couple of chairs constituting the furnishing of it.

chairs constituting the furnishing of it. A wide, grated window opens to the east and the rising sun sheds golden rays into the apartment. It was formerly occupied by mildly insane people and moonshiners.

Wink Taylor was with Hill nearly all day. Taylor is a close friend of the prisoner's and proposes to stick to him to the last. The two men are not unlike in personal appearance and are very near the same size. Taylor's presence drives duly same size. Taylor's presence drives duli care away from the abode of the festive on the trip.

These are some of the facts that they find staring them in

Hill has talked a great deal to the news-Hill has talked a great deal to the newspapers, but he has said vastly more to friends. To several friends who have seen him since his return to Atlanta he has told stories with which the printed interviews with him do not begin to compare in point of sensationalism. Hill has never said so, but people who have talked with him gained the impression from his conversation that he never expects to be tried.

The case has excited more public interest than any case since Redwine went wrong.

than any case since Redwine went wrong. People have been busy speculating as to the probable fate of Hill. Some profess to believe that he will not be tried at all, to believe that he will not be tried at all, but a great many freely express the opinion that he will inevitably go to the penitentiary. He has announced his determination to fight the case and says he is backed by money and friends. No attempt has yet been made to arrange bond for him. It was given out yesterday that bond would probably be given next week.

Hill's room is supplied with plenty of reading matter. Although he is widely reputed to be a hard student of Shakespeare, not a single one of that author's works

GRAU'S OPERA COMPANY.

It Scores a Great Hit in "Boccaccio" Before

Large Audlence. The production of "Boccaccio" by the Grau company at the opera house last night was remarkable for more than one reason. In the first place, it was the first time in the history of the course in Atlanta that the full first place, it was the first time in the instruction of the opera in Atlanta that the full opera of "Boccaccio" has ever been produced in this city, and in the second place, the Atlanta public will probably never witness at home or abroad a better rendition of the

The excellence and high order of talent which make up the personnel of the Grau company were never better exemplified than in last night's performance. Without being one of those pieces, of v. hich there are many, in which a little breeze and snap counts for everything, "Boccaccio" is an opera which none but a troupe of perfect training can hope to produce with any degree of merit.

Messrs. Clayton, Felch and Waldo made a trio on the comedy side of the piece which could scarcely have been excelled in the successful manner in which they got into their parts all the fun and frolic conceivable. The audience began to enjoy it from the very first, warmed up as the piece progressed and finally became enthusiastic over the specialties by the third act, brenking out into an encore, which might be better described as a how of delight. Miss Galliard never appeared more charming than she did last night. The grace of her manner is always bewitching, and added to her exquisitely trained and sweetly toned voice, produced an effect in the part of Boccaccio which carried her audience away.

Miss Mason has won a place in the affect.

Miss Mason has won a place in the affec-ions of Ajianta theatergoers which few ac-resses young or old have ever attained. Her reputation as a singer and popularity as a charming actress will both be enhanced by the manner in which she filled her role last night.

Mr. Francis Gaillard was also heartly welcomed, as was also Mr. Thomas H. Pearsse, both sustaining minor parts, but doing excellent work.
Miss Ada Bernard made a charming little ressary, and, as this must ultimately come, to not hesitate to say so far as I am occurred that I should be glad to see its ly accomplishment on a basis to the ensatisfaction of both of the present mulipalities. As to the basis, I do not think t fair and reasonable men from the communities assembled together in did discussion would fail to agree Miss Ada Bernal Mass Hashella.

The Peronella of Miss Bessie Fairbairn was a most artistic characterization and was one of the most palpable hits of the evening, her rendering of the hunting song in the second act being especially worthy of mention—it took the house by storm. No comedienne ever made such a hit in Atlanta before. Tonight we are to have Gilbert & Suilivan's great opera, "The Gondolters."

At the Fdg-wood.

Beauty, grace, finish and intelligence con-

Beauty, grace, finish and intelligence constitute a compound that is rarely found in a production of comic opera.

Out of the large number of judges that have visited the Edgewood this week the expression comes that "Fra Dlavolo" as sung there is an artistic revelation.

This verdict brings this fine aggregation of comic opera artists before the public backed by the assurance that it is the sentiment of the masses before whom they have worked honestly and earnestly in the interest of the art which they represent.

"Fra Diavolo" last night was witnessed by a large house. The work of the company was from the rise until the fall of the curtain meritorious, and all were eager and sincere in the applause extended the singera.

The sextet this year is sung better than it was last. The voices of Mr. Gurville and Mr. Pearson blend harmoniously, while their associates, Miss Pierce, Miss Dressler, Mr. Newborough, Mr. Mathews and Mr. Mock give ample support during the sextet's rendition.

Mr. Gurville continues to present "Fra Diavolo" as it should be. Mr. Pearson as "Beppo" and Mr. Mathews as "Jalcomo" are good. Miss Pierce as "Zerlina" is admirable. Miss Dressler and Mr. Newborough do their parts in a refined way.

The chorus sings with animation and appears deeply interested in its part of the opeia.

"Fra I avao" will be sung again tonight and at a matinee tomorrow afternoon, the sextet being introduced at both performances.

THE ORDINANCE IS A LAW NOW.

A Very Interesting Interview with Cantain Bob Lowry About Alien School Teachers - The Law Signed.

The ordinance requiring all persons holding office for the city of Atlanta to live in the city became a law yesterday when Mayor Goodwin put his signature in approval to it. Now, it is an interesting question to the office holders "where am I living?" There is a great deal of interest in this law among the people of Atlanta. The ordinance seems to have passed by up to date with but little attention on the part of the newspapers but, now that the has come to take effect the people are talk-ing about it. They are wondering where the law started, who was the author of it, and what was the direct intention of it? Here is the ordinance as it passed the ouncil last Monday and as it was signed council last Monday and as it was signed up by the mayor yesterday:

Section 1. Be it ordained by the mayor and general council. That from and after the passage of this ordinance no department or officer of the government of Atlanta shall elect, appoint or employ for service, or continue in service, any person who is not a bona fide citizen of said city of Atlanta, where the work of service is to be performed entirely or chiefly within said city unless the consent of the mayor and general council is first obtained.

Sec. 2. Be it further ordained, That all ordinances in conflict with this ordinance are nereby repealed.
A Constitution representative called at the office of the city clerk yesterday and asked for the origin of the ordinance.

Mr. Charley Rice stated that the law was originated by a labor organization in Atlanta, the name of which he could not recall, but said that a committee from that organization appeared before Mayor Goodwin and offered the suggestion to him. Mayor Goodwin talked about it before several members of the council in an offhanded way, and some of them thought it was a good measure. In this way some member of the council brought the thing out in a subsequent meeting and it was re ferred to the committee on finance and employment. The committee to which it was referred liked the idea, and in this way the thought that had been originated by the labor organization came to take shape as an ordinance. The ordinance was framed by the finance committee and submitted to the general council. The general council passed it and thus it becomes a

What Will It Do?

The ordinance will bring about some changes among the holders of office under the city authorities.

There seems to have been a great deal of trouble along this line lately. Particularly is this felt among the teachers of the city schools where the custom of drawing pay from Atlanta and living out of the city is most glaringly observed.

Captain Bob Lowry was the author of a resolution based upon the stipulations of this same ordinance that passed in the board of education the other day.

When Captain Lowry was and asked what was the motive bebind his step and what was the evil that he was aiming at he said: Well, it is simply this. There are countless numbers of poor women and deserving ones, too, in Atlanta who are clamoring sitions in our public schools. They are well equipped with sufficient education to teach and are in every way thoroughly qualified. Instead of having them in the schools making a good living they are out of the positions and instead of them the teachers of Atlanta's schools in many instances are residents of other but neighboring communities.

This is a palpable wrong to those who live in Atlanta, pay their taxes here, do their trading here and at the same time are just as well qualified to teach as the teachers who live out of Atlanta and draw their money out of Atlanta specket to spend in other towns close by. Why, we have several teachers who live in Decatur, and who come to town as the days pass by just to teach their classes and then go back in the afternoon and are at home. When the time comes for them to pay their taxes they don't come to Atlanta's officials and hand it in, but go to the au-thorities of Decatur and DeKalb county.

"Atlanta ought to get her teachers from out her own population for they will spend their salaries here, will pay their taxes into the general fund, thus helping to support the schools in which they teach. Well, their taxes go now to the support of the schools but others are drawing the salaries as teachers.

schools but others are drawing the salaries as teachers.
"Don't you see this is all wrong? That is why I introduced the resolution in the meeting of the board of education and that is why I favor giving Atlanta offices to Atlanta people. I spoke with Mayor Goodwin about the resolution before I introduced it, and he thought it was the prepare thing to do as the city council had proper thing to do as the city council had taken steps in the same direction."

It is reasonable to suppose that some of Atlanta's office bolders will come in from the suburbs now, or else give up the Jack is dead and the policemen are sad over his untimely demise. Jack was the constant companion of Sergeant Bob Ozburn on his rounds, and was known to every policeman on the force. who are now talking of erecting a monument to him.

For many years Jack has been a member of the police department. He was perfectly well acquainted with the duties of an officer and could tell a criminal from a penceable man at a glance. He was a very small animal, with a heavy, shaggy coat of gray. His chief occupation was going the rounds with Sergeant Ozburn and chasing rats into sewer holes. He was the personal friend of all the policemen, and they would feel lost if Jack should fail to make his rounds.

"He had as much sense as a man," said an officer yesterday, in a trembling volce, "Jack did. Why he used to ride home on the car, and he knew right where to get off. I've seen him lots of times when he'd he left by the sergeant climb on to a car and ride up town and find his master. He knew every policeman, and at night he could place his nose right on every one of them, even when the sergeant might have to look very hard."

Jack was properly buried and a shaft of some kind will probably be put over his grave by the officers who thought he was a cute little dog.

And all this would seem to indicate that Colleson in his own heady way knows just little more about the law than the grand jury that is now seeking to make him sub-servient to their wishes. Mr. Tolleson has said all along that whenever the grand jury called upon him in a legal manner o show his notes he would do so, but until then the notes would not be produced. Tuesday he was served with an ordinary subpena to appear before the grand jury and on Wednesday morning when he en ered the grand jury room was confronted with the request to deliver to the grand jury the notes alleged to have the forged ignature of Mrs. Fannie L. Porter atached. The little banker politely informed he grand jurors that he would not comply with their request. He was then give until yesterday morning by Solicitor Hill to appear before the august tribunal of Fulton county with the six notes wanted.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning, in com-pliance with the wish of the grand jury, Mr. Tolleson was pacing serenely up and down the hallway near the grand jury r but not a note did he have to turn to the grand jurors. He was called the room and the spectators stood outside and awaited the outcome of the tilt between banker and jury with interest. It was ex-pected every moment to see Mr. Tolleson turned out of the grand jury room and delivered into the hands of the sentinel

The result of his interview Mr. Tolleson had no hesitation in telling. He exhibited the following subpena, type-written:

I merely did not care to have my papers held. The grand jury has consented for me to bring the notes before them and after exhibiting them to bring them away with me."

So the only difference that existed be-tween Tolleson and the grand jury was Tol-leson's fear that the grand jury might ap-propriate his papers. He will exhibit the notes this morning at 10 o'clock. The grand jury adjourned at 12 o'clock resterday until this morning at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Jeffer, a Russian Woman, Arrested for Cheating and Swindling.

There was an interesting scene enacted in Judge Orr's court yesterday afternoon.

It was the trial of Mrs. Jeffer, a Russian woman, who whas charged with the offense of cheating and swindling.

She had been arrested the evening before by Mr. Charley Boyles, one of the balliffs of Judge Orr's court, and her arrest created a lively sensation. It was about 9 o'cleck when the balliff called on Mrs. Jeffer, who resides on Decatur street, with the warrant in his hand.

The good lady was 'udignant when the ob-ject of his errand was 'unounced. She strove in vain to assure the bailiff of her innocence, and in spite of her persistent appeals the officer was firm. He was merely an officer of the court and was obliged to execute his commission. oilly or was firm. He was merely an officer of the court and was obliged to execute his commission.

Realizing that she was in a desperate situation she began to protest in a loud voice. This brought to the scene a large number of sympathizers, who endeavored to assist the good woman. But their efforts were in vain and she was placed under arrest.

Yesterday afternoon the trial occurred in Judge (err's court. It was brought out that an old ..egro woman was the prosecutor and that Mrs. Jeffer had appropriated to her own use, according to the testimony, a quilt and other property which belonged to the negro woman. Judge Orr after hearing the case decided that enough had been shown to warrant him in bind'ug the defendant over to appear before the city court.

He fixed the bond in the sum of $150, which was given by Mrs. Jeffer, who thought it a great outrage that she had lost her case. She protested her innocence and says she is confident she will come out all right in the end.

Out of Their Relief Association The Police Relief Association is going to ask for a charter. Chief Connolly, who is treasurer of the organization, yesterday stated that he had more money on hand stated that he had more money on hand than he had ever had at any previous time in the association's history.

The books show $1,549 on hand, which amount is constantly being added to by the payment of monthly dues by members. The object of getting a charter is to enable the association to invest its money and make it yield interest. There will be a meeting of the association today, and the matter will be discussed. It is pretty generally favored by the policemen.

Two Negro Women Who Are Very Sharp if Guilty of the Charge Against Them.

Laura Payne and Mary Ellington were yesterday sent to jail for forgery. The women are the two arrested by Detectives Crim and Bedford for perpetrating a forgery on the Atlanta National bank.

The forgery was very cleverly executed, and shows the two women are up to snuff. The first forgery occurred a year ago. A fifty-dollar check was presented at the bank, and was cashed. It was signed by the name of Mrs. Leyden, and was soon discovered to be a forgery. For over a year, the employes of the bank kept a lookout for the woman who presented the check, and on Tuesday she presented therself with another check, which also turned out to be a forgery.

A Mr. and Mrs. Newell, of Atlanta, were the victim of arsenical poison in Chicago last Wednesday, as was told in a special telegram printed in yesterday's Constitution. The arsenic was contained in the food and six members of the family which the Newells were visiting were dangerously poisoned. At the time the telegram was sent none of the poisoned people were out of danger. The telegram caused many inquiries to be made in this city as to who the Atlanta couple were. No one seemed to know them. Mr. W. H. Newell, of the King Hardware Company, stated that W. J. Newell was a travelying man for a Chicago house and lived here with his wife about half the time. He was of the opinion that these were the Newells referred to in the telegram. Outside of this couple he knew of no other people by that name in the city.

The lot now belongs to the city, and as soon as the council unlooses the purse strings of the city sufficiently to appropriate the funds necessary to put up the new engine house ground will be broken and work will commence.

The site selected for the new engine house is one of the most desirable in the city, and the city was in great luck to find such a suitable and convenient place for a fire department station. It is located at the corner of Wheat street and the Boulevard, and commands a splendid view of he city. It is higher than the lots surrounding, and can be seen from the city very planly. It is on the southeastern corner of Wheat and the Boulevard and is 41x100 feet.

For some time the firemasters and Chief Joyner have had their eyes on this lot, and Joyner have had their eyes on this lot, and they have been quietly casting lines for it. It was the property of Mr. James Campbell, and was highly valued by him. Through patient negotiations the firemasters yesterday succeeded in getting Mr. Campbell to offer the lot to the city for $3,000, which was the price agreed upon, and it will be paid by the city. The trade was consummated yesterday morning and the necessary legal transfers were drawn.

legal transfers were drawn.

Chief Joyner was in high spirits yesterday over the purchase of the lot, as it brings in over the purchase of the lot, as it brings in sight what he has been contending for—a new engine house. It is located in a section of the city which really needs fire protection. It is a long run from any of the engine houses to the parts of the city near the site of the new station.

The building will be modelled after No. 5 engine house, on Peters street. This is the newest of the fire engine houses and is built after the latest styles in architecture. No. 8 will be supplied with the same machiners.

Work on the building will not begin until after the summer months, and it will be the latter part of this year or early next year before the new station will be ready for business. The building will face westward, and from the front a magnificent view of the city can be front a magnificent view of the city can be

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

PheDay on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 8—There was a decidedly stronger tone to speculation at the stock exchange today, and an improved feeling in financial circles generally, owing to the further decide in sterling exchange, which has put a stop to gold exports, and the more cheering news from Chicago. London purchased be-tween 15,000 and 20,000 shares of various stocks, and tween 15,000 and 20,000 shares of various stocks, and there were moderate buying orders for local investment account. The advance in prices was equal to 1/2 @2 per cent in the general list, while Manhattan rose 8/4 per cent to 128/5. Lake Shore, General Electric, Louisville and Nashville and Sugar were elso conspicuous in the improvement. Western Union was raided at one time during the morning from 82% down to 81% at one time during the morning from 87% down to 31%, but the stock subsequently rose to 33. During the afternoon National Cordage, which was previously advanced from 13% to 14%, dropped to 12 on reports that the organization plan would assess the holders $10 per share. Reading at the same time developed marked weakness and sold down from 18 to 16. The remainder of the list held tolerably well, final quotations being 16% per cent below the higher. The advance in call leaves to 15 per cent believe the higher, on effect, because it is to 15 per cent had little or no effect, because loans to 15 per cent had little or no effect, because it was almost immediately followed by free offerings at 56% per cent. Lake Shore was noticeably strong in the late trading, selling up to and closing at 122½. The market left off steady to firm in tone. The sales were only 216,00 shares, including 15,000 shares Richmond Terminal.

Railway bonds were weak. Sales $286,000. At the close of business the holders of $11,000,000 general mortgage and 132,000 shares of stocks had assented to the Readippe adjustment plan.

J. S. Bache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Privad Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager.

NEW YORK, June S.—Our market has been feverish, but on the whole strong. The strength is due almose entirely to the covering of shorts and not to any favorable financial developments. The runs on various banks in the west, especially '1 Chicago, seem about over and we are now settling down to the actual situation which will be one of contracting and liquidation until the currency question is settled and confidence returns. It is true that the conditions are somewhat improved by the heavy exports of cereals, which practically ends gold shipments for the present and will materially alter the balance of trade if the shipments continue. We do not think, however, that European financiers are in such shape as to warrant any great speculative purchases of our grain, but we think, on the contrary, that they will buy only as they use. Every little counts, however, and there is no doubt the shipments and a continuance of them would assist us materially. J. S. Bache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

Hubbard. Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, June 8-Manchester advices continue of a favorable character, but there is evidently more disposition on the part of Liverpool merchants to meet the demand than to insist upon a further advance in prices. To some extent our market has influenced this change of opinion abroad, but the real reason can probably be found in the improved weather conditions throughout the south and southwest. The weather has cleared up, and there are indications that we have passed through the rainy season, and the usual June gh the rainy season, and the usual June t of the cotton crop will now be witnessed. improvement of the cotton crop will now be witnessed. Locally the situation is simply one of disappointment at the failure of the interests allied with cotton to manifest a disposition to invest upon an advancing market. Undoubtedly this section of the country has felt the full effects of the recent severe losses in the depreciation of values, and now it is being felt throughout the south and west. Naturally, with the difficulty of obtaining money, every one is disposed to keep his business well in hand, and no speculative apirit is shown to support prices. The recent advance eliminated the local short interest, and our market today, opening aleady at a slight advance overy resterday's quotations, has declined until August sold at 7.72. This decline simply follows the change in tone in Liverpool, where the market opened steady at a shade easier than yesterday, and; as since declined 2-6id, closing barely steady at the lowest prices of the day. Shipments from Bombay this week show a decrease as compared with last year, and the receipts are also on a smaller scale, but the main factor in favor of cotton must be damage to the crop and a revival of the disposition among manufacturers and merchants on this side to hold cotton at present or higher prices. If the publication of the government bureau report as to acreage shows no decrease, the opinion is that it will show an increase of not over it of per cent. Before the publication of The Chronicle's report an effort on the part of local traders to cover their previous anles caused a rally of from 405 points. When The Chronicle report was read the market lost the advance to recover it again under buying orders that appear to have been based upon an increase in acreage of 10 per cent. The close of the market was steady at 204 points improvement over the lowest of the day. In The Chronicle's special report on the cotton acreage among the conclusions made are the following: An increase of 1.29 per cent, making the total acreage 19.701,353, against 15,362,000 in 1892. There is a decided inclination to enlarge the cotton acreage throughout the south this year, notwithstanding the efforts put torth by a number of states to prevent such a result. With regard to miscellaneous acreage, the planting of cotton in the Indian Territory has considerably increased, and, there has been a fair gain in Virginia, etc. There has been an increase in other states and territories of about 11½ per cent. Telegraphic reports up to June 7th show that the piant is improving perceptibly in many localities under the influence of the favorable weather which has prevailed during the past two weeks. Altogether, the plant seems to be in better condition in Texas, Florida and fluence of the favorable weather which has prevained during the past two weeks. Altogether, the plant seems to be in better condition in Texas, Florida and Alabama than elsewhere in the south, aithough backward generally. Two views regarding The Choronicle's report are current. One, that it foreshadows a small increase of acreage and a por condition of the crop by the government report due on Saturday, and therefore a higher market, while the other is, that the publication of an increased acreage of 7.29 per cent and an increased use of fortilityers coulding the amount used in creased use of fertilizers equaling the amount used the last crop year will tend to put the consumer upon the old method of buying from hand-to-mouth and dis-courage speculation on the prospects of an increased yield.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Circular.

was the most whimsically nervous one we have had for was the most whimsically nervous one we have had for a long time. Liverpool opened practically unchanged, and as some decline had been expected in that quarter the bears were disappointed, and our opening was 3 points higher, august selling at 7.83. After the call the market weakened, and the bears, pressing their advantage, succeeded in depressing August 12 points to 7.71. For the rest of the day the market fluctuated feverisbly, the extremes being 7.72 and 7.78, the close being stendy with 7.78 bid for August. The varying hopes and expectations in regard to The Financial Chronicle's estimate of the increased acreage was the Chronicle's estimate of the increased acreage was the moving cause of the changes in the market. The estimate was announced at 2 o'clock to be 7.3-10 per cent Different views were taken of the significance, and the views were reflected in the sharp fluctuations of the last hour. Again we are looking to Liverpool tomorrow to give the key-note to the market. There is no loubt that, unless we get good support from abroad the tendency here is to go down. J. S. Bache & Co.'s Cotton Letter. NEW YORK, June 8-The market opened steady, but soon became dull for lack of any speculative orders. The bears took advantage of the same to hammer prices, and were successful in causing a break of about prices, and were successful in causing a oreas of about 10 points without apparently bringing out much long cotton. Liverpool and Manchester cables continuo favorable. They report a better trade and a good business, and further quote that the English spinners are very bare of stocks. Spots are steady and in good demand. The immediate future looks more encouraging to be delegantly single to be about of only specific ing to holders, but owing to the absence of any speci lation no great advance is probable. The weather in the cotton belt has been quite favoreble. The market advanced at the close on The Financial Chronicle's report of an increase of 7.29 per cent, only making the acreag 19.70,1000 acres, against 18,822,000 last year. A larger acreage had been expected.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Wheat broke all records today by selling down to 63c a bushel for the cash article, the lowest price ever touched on the board of trade. The market CHICAGO, June 8.—Wheat broke all records today by selling down to 63c a bushel for the cash article, the lowest price ever touched on the board of trade. The market started firm and for about twenty minutes it Loked as if the improvement would last. At the end of that time there was a return of yesterday's weakness and the slightly higher which rules for the time mentioned, were succeeded by a decine in July to 1-2c below the lowest price it had ever previously reached. At the opening it sold from 66 d-4 to 66 7-8, and before it began to decline it just touched 67c for a moment. Following that and continuing about an hour prices were cut down by sixteenth until July was at 66 1-2, and before a 1-33y of more than 1-8 had been effected it dropped to 65 1-4. That at the present rat, of discount would make cash or June wheat worth only 63c. The decline was due to a fear of further trobbic among the clevator concerns of the north-west, was in a measure confirmed by the weakness of the Minneapolis market. July wheat at Minneapolis declined to 56 3-4, or 9 1 2c below the lowest it touched here. The most prominent seller of wheat here during the break was Armour & Co., and their sales here were reported as being based upon purchases of equal magnitude in the relatively chapter markets at Minneapolis and Duluth. Another item in producing the weakness will be the Missourl state crop report, which gives the condition as $1 compared with $7 on the previous month and as compared at 72 given by the government a month ago. The accepts at Chicago was only fifty cars, only five of which were contract. No more than thirty-two carloads are reported for tomorrow. The market dueled down after the break alluded to above and recovered a little, but there was no great buowney, and after a reaction of about 5-8c the improvement stopped and the close wos 1-8 lower for July and 3-4 lower for September than yesterday's final figures.

RAILROAD CONTRACTORS.

CONTRACTORS.

Proposals for the graduation, trestie work and masonry upon the extension of the Manchester and Augusta railroad in South Carolina, from Remini, in Clarendon county, to Denmark, in Barnwell county, a distance of 44 miles, are invited. Amount of material to be moved about 1,500,000 yards; amount of trestie to be built about 5 1-2 miles.

The work will be divided into sections of about 5 miles each. Eids may be made for the sections separately, or for the whole work. Bids for sections will include the tresties unon them with the exception of those at Santee river. North Edisto, South Edisto and Haif-Way swamp. The Santee river trestle will be about 1,4000 lineal feet; South Edisto about 5,000 lineal feet and Haif-Way swamp about 1,000 lineal feet.

For the above mentioned trestles separate bids are invited, and for the Santee trestle two bids, one for full pile trestle, the other for frapie trestle upon pile foundation. At Santee trestle three forces will be required to be put in operation and maintained until the work is completed.

Bids for trestles will include clearing of the right of way 120 feet in width.

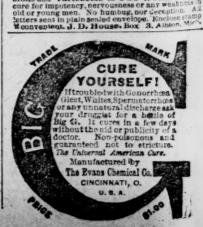

Bids will be opened on the 17th day of June, 1833, and contracts awarded upon accepted proposals at the office of the Wilmington, N. O.

Work to be pushed with all possible dispatch, and to be completed on or before the first day of January, 1894. Plans, profiles and aspecifications can be seen at the above mentioned office, The communications to F. GARDNER.

The committee of thirty from the mass ing of citizens held Tuesday to hit upon some plan for the encouragement of new tories, met yesterday and decided send 100 solicitors out in the city for bscriptions to stock in the huge manu-

The meeting was called to order in the Chamber of Commerce by Chairman Phil Harralson, who nominated General Clement A Evans as chairman to preside over the meeting. General Evans was unanimously elected to preside and took the gavel.

Mr. Albert L. Beck was elected secre

leneral Evans in a short talk set forth object of the committee's meeting, delaring that the chief purpose was to put in practical operation the plan adopted by the new days before for the encouragement and building up of Atlanta's manufacturing interests. He called upon the members of the committee to give a liberal expression of opinions as to the best methods he adopted.

Mr. Burton Smith made a short speech declaring that while all the committeemen had a general idea of the work to be done. but few had determined upon any special plan. He thought every one of them were there with a willingness to take part in the work for the good of Atlanta and as for himself he simply wanted to hear from leading members of the committee as to the best plan and he would be as active as any man to help to push the scheme whatever it might be, to further the welfare of Atlanta's business and industrial interests.

Somebody called for Captain James W. English, who was present, to give his ideas, a to the most feasible plan, Captain English took the floor and, after thanking the committee for the courtesy offered, he said he was not a member of the committee, but had come to be with the abers at the meeting after talking with Chairman Harralson.

Captain English proceeded to outline plan similar to the one mapped out in his interview in yesterday's Constitution. He said he wanted to see a company formed with a stock capital of a half-million dolto lend money on good terms to all industries seeking establishment in Atlanta. He showed very clearly that it is money that these newcomers want. It takes money to enlarge factories; nothing but money can allow manufactories to enlarge their list of laborers and increase their pay rolls. He said the banking capital of the city was not sufficient to go around and a company that could lend money to new manufacturers was the thing to create. It was a plain, common sense talk and set

This Is Gospel Truth. Mr. S. Landauer, of the Southern agricul-tural works, a prominent member of the or instance his pay roll in summer months was reduced from $2,000 or $3,000 per month in winter months to $500. The reason was not because their work was not in demand, for he would warrant he could sell every plow he could make in the summer. The reason of the cut-down was because he could not run through the sumsummer. The reason of the cut-down was because he could not run through the summer months on ag large a-scale as in winter, because in winter money was freer. If he could get the money from some bank or from some company as suggested by Captain English, he would not cut down his pay roll in summer, but, on the contrary, would enlarge his number of laborers and would guarantee that he could pay the loans promptly when the time came, for he could sell all the products of his factory readily. The simple proposition was to get more money and build a bigger factory. He declared Atlanta's freight rates and taxes were not the bugbear. They were not the great burthens. He thought the railroad rates were as good as those of any city in the country. The water tax ought to be lowered, but at the same time the cry was for more money.

Mr. Hase Has a Plan.

Mr. Aaron Haas introduced the following

Mr. Aaron Haas introduced the following resolution, which he suggested as a feasible plan for operation in accomplishing the

ble plan for operation in accomplishing the results in view:
Resolved, That a committee shall be appointed to solled subscription to a finance company, to be organized for the purpose of aiding solvent manufacturers now here, or such as may hereafter be established here. Subscriptions to be binding when $100,300 shall be subscribed, in shares of $50: payments to be made at the rate of $1.25 per month per share.

In advancing the claims of his plans Mr. Haas made a good speech. He said the time had come for action. The people of Atlanta need not hope to, make a moneymaking scheme out of any plan to encourage these new manufactories. The benefits would come indirectly by building up the would come indirectly by building up the town, thus building up each man's trade. It was an investment true, but not one to clip actual coupons on. Lend money. Get it back with no income of big interest direct, but on the face value of the loan. The interest would come in an-other shape—the shape of indirect advan-

Some Opposition to This Plan.

There was some little opposition to this Frank Rice spoke against the resolution because he thought it would be difficult to raise much money on a plan which didn't look to an income of interest. He was disposed to believe that very few citizens would subscribe money to be loaned unless interest was to be charged on the loans.

loaned unless interest was to be charged on the loans.

But when Mr. Rice sat down there were many to clamor for the floor to offset his views. There was enthusiasm in every speech. Mr. Burton Smifh said the people of Atlanta would subscribe money and ask to big interest, perfectly willing to get it back with fair interest and along with it a lot of new industries.

Mr. W. W. Boyd spoke on the same line and so did Dr. Hutchison. Mr. Phil Harralson spoke with full approval of the idea, and Mr. Forrest Adair was equally enthusiastic.

The Question of Interest.

The question of interest was the knotty problem—what amount of interest ought to be charged the manufactories borrowing Mr. Burton Smith moved that a commit-tee be appointed to frame the heading for a subscription list to be circulated through the city, the heading to set forth clearly the plans of operation to be adopted by the manufacturers, aid company for which the money was solicited.

But Mr. Haas's resolution was the embodiment of all suggestions, and Dr. Hutchison moved to amend that resolution alightly according to the varying suggestions rather than go to work on a new one out and out. This was a popular sentiment and Mr. Haas took his resolution and rewrote it.

When completed he tore it up, however, saying the general resolution adopted by the mass meeting Tuesday covered all the very details the committee was then squabbling over. He read the general resolution of the mass meeting, and it was received with applause.

The Resolution for Operation.

Here is the full text of the resolution: Resolved. That we favor the organization of an Atlanta manufacturers' association, the capital stock of which shall not be less than $50,000, nor more than $500,000, to be divided into shares of stock of $50 each; the object of said association to be to aid manufacturing industries desiring to locate here by such encouragement and co-operation as can be properly and safely extended to them by loaning money at a small rate of interest, taking stock in the same, etc., after careful and diligent inquiry into the merits of each by committees of able and competent men.

Resolved further, That a committee of thirty-six shall be appointed by the chairman of this meeting and announced through the daily press, on charter, organization and subscriptions, said committee to report to future meetings to be called by the chairman of this meeting.

Resolved further, That at the close of said future meeting to be called as above provided for, the aggregate subscriptions shall be ascertained and a charter for the amount of the capital stock of the same applied for, if said aggregate is as much as $50,000, and subscriptions shall only be bipiding when as much as $50,000 is subscribed for. Subscriptions shall be paid in monthly installments of $2.50 per share and such payments shall begin at such time as the board of directors, when constituted, shall prescribe.

Resolved further, That it is the sense of this meeting that greater results can be accomplished if subscriptions to the amount of $50,000 can be obtained, and we commend to the people of Atlanta and vicinity this organization on this basis, and express the sentiment that subscriptions should be general by those able to subscribe, as a great movement for the public benefit should not be confined to a few.

Resolved further. That in addition to the manifold advantages of our city as a manufacturing and distributing point by reason of centr

This motion was carried, and a committee was appointed to assist the chairman in the work of selecting that committee. It will be appointed today, and will be called to meet very soon.

In this brief and determined way, the committee knuckled down to business in dead carnest, after a free expression of opinion, and will rush the solicitors out early next week over the city one hundred strong.

An Interesting Question About the Atlanta Postoffies.

General Lewis claims that his term as postmaster in Atlanta will not end until December, that being the month in which he was confirmed by the senate.

OUR JURY SYSTEM

There Is No Defect in the Law as It Now Stands.

THE VERDICTS AGAINST CORPORATIONS

Are Due to Such Causes as Prejudice and to the Methods Resorted to in the Practice-Lawyers Talk.

Is there any radical wrong in the jury

The question which was sprung by Captain English the other afternoon is taking on additional interest and the area of its discussion is every day increasing.

This is the problem as it now stands: The juries of this country are granting too many verdicts in favor of parties who have no color of right to recover and the tendency of this evil is to undermine the strength of corporations and to bring about a serious plight in the financial situation of the country.

Nearly all of the railroads are embar rassed on account of the heavy suits which have entailed upon them immense losses and which have resulted in throwing many of them into the courts of the land. As Captain English expresses it, juries are taking from the man who has for the purpose of giving to the man who has not and who is too lazy to work."

Now the question arises, in yiew of the injury which the corporations of the country are sustaining, is there any defect in the law which governs the selection juries? How the Jury Is Selected.

The most direct way of answering this question is to quote from the code of this state such paragraphs as are pertinent to the subject.

Section 3910 (d) of the code reads as foll ws: "Commissioners in each county in this state appointed by the presiding judge of the superior court and constituting the jury commissioners, shall revise the list and shall select from the books of the tax receiver upright and intelligent men to serve as jurors and shall write the names of the persons so selected on tickets as required by law. It shall be the duty of said jury commissioners to select from these a sufficient number, not exceeding two-fifths of the whole number of the most experienced, intelligent and upright to serve as grand jurors and the jurors left after such second selection shall constitute traverse jurors."

The next paragraph of the same section provides further that "said jury commissioners shall place the tickets containing the names of the grand jurors in a box to be pro vided at the public expense, which box snall contain apartments marked No. 1 and No. 2, from which the grand jurors shall be drawn as now provided by law and said jury shall place tickets of traverse jurors in separate box to wit: The jury box now in use or other similar be., from which traverse jurors shall be drawn as now provided by law." Section 3911 provides the manner in which the juries shall be drawn from the box.

"The judge of the superior court at each term, in open court, shall unlock said box and break the seal and cause to be drawn from apartment one not less than eighteen nor more than thirty names to serve as grand jurors at the next term, all of which grand jurors at the next term, all of which names, as well as the names drawn to serve as petit jurors, as herinafter provided for shall be deposited in department two, and when all the names shall have been drawn out of apartment one, then the drawings shall commence from No. 2 and the tickets be returned to No. 1 and so on alternately, and no name so deposited as aforesaid in said box shall, on any pretense whatever, be thrown out of said box or destroyed, except when it is satisfactorily shown to the judge that the juror is dead or removed from the county or otherwise disqualified by law."

This is the law on the subject, which shows the careful manner in which the ju-

"The difficulty is not in the law," said Judge Andy Calhoun yesterday, "for the law is well nigh perfect. It is found in the weakness of the individual juror and to a greater extent in the number of shysters who make it a point to stir up litigation and to bring all manner of cases into the and to bring all manner of cases into the courts. This is wherein the difficulty lies my judgment."
"What do you consider the remedy for "The only remedy which I can suggest is in a pronounced public sentiment. This sentiment should be more in sympathy with the corporations, I think, than it is at present the corporation of the corporatio The opposition to wealthy institutions is too great when we consider the benefit which the country derives from them. Such antagonism is to a large extent the cause of verdicts against the railroads and other or vendets against the corporations.

"This sentiment should also frown upon the practice on the part of shysters, who seek to stir up litigation in a round-about seek to stir up litigation in a round-about seek to stir up litigation in a round-about seek to stir upons and inducing seek to stir up litigation in a round-about way, by sending out runners and inducing parties to sue who would otherwise never. The discussion which has been started by lies right here, and is caused by lawyers bringing their worthless suits into court for the purpose of taking advantage of the opposition existing between the individual and the corporations. I believe the practice is worse here than in any other part of the state but I believe that even here the practice. is worse here than in any other part of the state, but I believe that even here the practice is improving and we have fewer cases now that do not properly belong in court than ever before. Public sentiment has already accomplished much in the way of reform."

Other Lawvers Talk.

Other Lawyers Talk. The prevailing opinion among the lawyers coincides with the position taken by Judge Calhoun. "There is no trouble with the law," said a well-known attorney yesterday, "and if the bar association will do its duty in keep-ing out such men from the profession who have no business in the practice of law, much of the evil complained of will be re-much of the evil complained of will be removed."

The difficulty seems to be in the lawyers and not in the law. If public sentiment will rise up and put a stop to the practice of bringing improper suits into court and of stirring up litigation the number of verdicts will be reduced with the number of cases. It will then be time to work upon the minds of the jury in teaching them to deal out equal justice between men and corporations as between man and man.

This is the position taken by the leading attorneys of the city.

The discussion which has been started gy Captain English will no doubt have a beneficial result in bringing about the public sentiment that is necessary to correct the evil as it now exists.

WORLD'S FAIR FREE.

The Constitution's Offer to the Pive Popniar Citizens of Atlanta.

THEY ARE TO BE CHOSEN BY BALLOT.

And Everybody Has the Right to Vote-How the Contest will Be Run, and Who Are the Candidates.

The Constitution's world's fair contest is growing more popular every day. It is nar-rowing down to a question of nip and tuck and let the best man win.

It is hard to find a Constitution a day old without the tell tale hole in it where the ballots were clipped.

A gentleman was figuring yesterday on the number of ballots that would be printed by the time the race was over. "The contest will be just twenty-two days long," he said, "and there are 17,200 papers printed daily, are there not?"

"That's right," said The Constitution

"Well, there are five ballots in each paper printed. That makes five times 17,200, or $6,000 ballots a day, in all. Now, multiply that by twenty-two, the number of days that the contest runs, and by June 18th there will have been printed 1.892,000. "Now, divide that number by five and you will get the number of ballots for each class of candidates. It makes just 378,500 votes that can be cast for each of the five offerent classes of contestants. I feel sorry for that 'coupon editor,' 'r remarked the gentleman as he turned to leave.

Of course a large number of these ballots will not be voted, though the great majority of them will. It is safe to estimate that at least two-thirds of them will be clipped and voted.

voted.

The number of votes received by any individual, however, will not be nearly so large, as indications so far point to a great number of contestants.

In some of the contests it begins to look like a close suce, though there is no telling how many votes are being held out until the last day.

how many votes are being held out until the last day.

But one thing is certain. The people are interested in it, and the ballots are being clipped right along all over town. And when the result is known there will be five happy people in town.

The great question just now is, who will they be happy people in town.

The great question just now is, who will they be.

Remember the rules and prizes of the contest. To the public school teacher, fireman, policeman, commissioned militia officer or factory operative who receives the largest number of ballots, clipped from The Constitution, we will give free a ticket to Chicago and return over the famous East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia and Queen and Crescent routes as far as Cincinnati, and from Cincinnati to Chicago and back over either the Monon or Big Four routes. After getting to Chicago the successful contestants will be given free board and lodging at the famous Hotel Ingram, a model fire proof hotel, just opposite the main entrance to the grounds, for one week.

Who will be the winners? Here are the ballots. Let the people decide.

AS THEY OFFERED NO EVIDENCE

Porter Stocks Read His Statement Yesterday Morning.

ANOTHER JUROR WAS TAKEN SICK.

A Lot of Witnesses Were Introduced in Rebuttal of Stocks's Statement-Mr. Reuben Arnold Speaks.

Argument was commenced in the Stocks case yesterday afternoon at a few minutes past 3 o'clock, Mr. Reuben Arnold making the opening speech.

This morning, at 9 o'clock, Colonel W C. Glenn, the able counsel for the prosecuon, will follow for the state, and attempt to remove the impression made yesterday afternoon by Mr. Arnold. Hon. J. T. Glenn speaks after Colonel Glenn for the defense, and then Colonel Wellborn Bray, Solicitor Charley Hill and Colonel Reuben Arnold will be the order.

This is an unusual arrangement, and was secured by the defense not introducing any evidence. According to law, when the defendant waives the right to introduce testi mony, it gives to him the privilege of making the opening and closing speech. The action of the defense in this matter was anticipated in yesterday moraing's Constitution, and, as was stated then, the only testimony brought forward by the counsel for Stocks was the statement of the defendant.

The statement of Stocks was substantially the same as the one he made at the former trial, with the exception of an addition, which was the statement of facts that occurred after and since his last arraignment. In this lately added portion Stocks calls attention to the fact that while he has been confined in Fulton county jail he has had several chances of escape offered him. He stated that upon one occasion, when three or four prisoners made good their escape, the failers were locked up, and that he aided in restoring order in the prison after having released the jailers.

After Porter Stocks read his statement, the state began to introduce evidence in rebuttal. Witness after witness testified that Cassin's character was that of a peaceable man. Mrs. Echols, the sister of Alph Cassin, was introduced during the afternoon to testify as to the dying declaration of her brother. This evidence was wanted to rebut the statement of Stocks in regard to the position Cassin was in when the shooting occurred. The prosecution was dependent upon the dying declaration of Cassin in this especial instance, but the defense objected to Mrs. Echols stating anything that the deceased had told her, as it was a dying declaration, and no foundation had been laid for it. After a lengthy argument upon this point, the judge sustained the objection of defendant's counsel.

One of the incidents of the trial early yesterday morning was the temporary illness of Juror J. H. Cooper. Cooper tackled a strong eigar just after eating a heavy breakfast, and the combination proved too much for him. In a few minutes after he reached the jury room he began to feel the bad effects of his previous enjoyment. One of the jurors had the impoliteness to tell Cooper that he had every symptom of nicotine poisoning, and the juror demanded that a physician be sent for, posthaste. The doctor summoned proved to be Cooper's family physician, Dr. Harris, who was allowed to enter the jury room and give the sick man the necessary at-On an examination, it was de veloped that the juror had a severe attack of cramps, mingled with a sickness at the stomach. He was quickly swaadled up in a large-sized mustard plaster bandage, and in forty-five minutes it had drawn all the bad effects of the cigar out of the juror's exercise. ystem, and then he was able to app the jury box. Although his illness was of short duration, Cooper had the appearance of a faded morning glory, and his limpness was of the dishrag order. He announced privately to his physician that in the future he would let the mustard plaster draw on the cigars he felt like smoking.

Porter Stocks's Statement. No sooner had court been called to order than Hon. J. T. Glenn arose and stated for the defense:

"Your honor, we will introduce no evidence whatever, as we do not think it necessary, but the defendant will make his statement to the court and jury."

Porter Stocks, with a large roll of legal paper in his hand, mounted the stand and took a seat in the witness chair. He asked for a glass of water, which was handed

"Take your time, Porter," cautioned Hon.
J. T. Glenn; "read slowly and distinctly" Stocks began to read his statement, his Voice trembling with emotion, but the noise in the courtroom was such that he could heard. This was caused by the crowd. The moment notice was given that there would be no witnesses introduced for the defense, but that Stocks would simply make his statement, the audience began to suddenly increase, and to surge and push around the bar with renewed interest. After the noise was stopped, Stocks began to read again, and when he reached the portion referring to tears came into his eyes, and he displayed his feeling in the trembling of his lips; his voice became indistinct, and he destroyed the sound by placing his hand over his mouth to hide his weakness.

The defendant's statement, verbatim, was

The defendant's statement, verbatim, was as follows:

Gentlemen of the jury: I have reduced my statement to writing for the purpose of being accurate in what is ay, and because I desire to leave nothing out. This statement has been written by me in my cell at quiet intervals and while I had time to collect my thoughts. I propose to tell the whole story, from beginning to end, just as it occurred.

On the evening of the difficulty I met Alph Cassin at the Kimball house, and Mr. Tom Dodd afterward joined us. I was acquainted with both of them. In a few moments after we met Mr. Cassin asked me about the trouble I had with John Martin, and Cassin remarked that he and Martin were intimate friends.

Before I proceed with the course of the meeting between Cassin and myself, it will be best to explain what trouble I had with Martin that Cassin was throwing up to me and subsequently threatened my life oil.

It is painful for me to refer to this matter, but my duty to myself demands that I should. My wife was at Salt Springs, or rather at Austell, last summer, and while there became acquainted with Martin, whom she did not know before. During a great part of this time I was off at work on the railroad.

"Martin Paying My Wife Attention."

'Martin Paying My Wife Attention."

"Martin Paying My Wife Attention."

Martin was constantly trying to pay her attention during the time she stayed at Sait Springs. I found that this man had attempted to force his attentions upon my wife. When my wife returned to my home in Atlanta from Austell, I found that this man had been to see her during my absence. His conduct was insulting to her and my mother. After I was informed of these facts I saw that something had to be done, and the first time I saw Martin I told him never to speak to myself or any member of my family again, and gave him to understand that if he did I would use force if necessary. God knows my wife is a pure, good woman. He was a desperate character, but I thought that I should defend my family at any risk.

I will now return to my meeting with Cassin on the evening of my difficulty with him.

Just after we met, Cassin asked me to ride with him beyond Grant park to get some skimmed cream for Mr. Frank Redd, who was very sick. I promised to go with him, and Cassin, Dodd and myself left the Kimball house together. Cassin was drinking some. Just as we got out of the Kimball house Cassin brought up this Martin matter to me. He said that he and Martin were close friends, and that Martin told him that I had threatened his (Martin's) life. I tried to avoid this ampleasant subject and made some evasive reply, saying it was a matter between Martin and myself, and that we had an understanding about it.

Cassin then said: "Before you are many days older somebody will plug you." This startled me, but at the time I did not realize its full import.

I began to wish that I had not promised to take the ride, but as I had promised to do so and had started, I was afraid to refuse to go further, lest it should anger Cassin and bring about an immediate difficulty, and Cassin was known to me 'o be a most dangerous man and easy to bring about a difficulty, especially when drinking.

Mr. Dodd privately told me that I would have trouble with Cassin if I didn't mind. but as I had nothing against Cassin, I thought I could escape trouble as well by treating him kindly and going on as I had agreed to do, as by leaving him abruptly. I did not know how to deal with him, but determined to do nothing he could take offense at.

Dodd soon left us, and Cassin and I walked down Pryor street, Cassin stopping at the restaurant next to the station house to leave some small bowls he had carried Mr. Redd some out and asked me to step in the saloon across Pryor street with him, next to the Chamber of Commerce. I did so, but I saw Cassin was drinking and declined to take a drink, telling him I would take a drink telling him I would take a drink telling him I would take a drink telling him I would take a drink

I took a light milk toddy and then bought some cigars.

I asked Cassin to come along and get through with bis ride, as it was getting late.

"Cassin Cursed and Struck Mr."

He said, "G—d d—n you, it ain't costing you anything to stay here," and struck me.

I tried to turn him off to different subjects, but in a few moments he told me that by the time he had punched my neck three or four times I'd learn some sense.

I saw he was hostile towards me, but didn't know how to get rid of him without making him more angry than he was.

Instead of resenting what he had done I asked him: "Afeb. "hy do you lusist on abusing me this way." He replied by catching my coat collar and saying: "G—d d—n you, you will evere hold all that d—n head of yours after t ret through with you." I said, "after a few more such remarks I'll not go out with you." He said: "Oh, I didn't know you were a baby; come on."

He took me by the arm and as we started out Cass'a bought from the barkseeper a half-pint of whisky and put it in my overcoat pocket. Cassin got the buggy and I got in on the corner of Hunter and Loyd streets.

Cassin, on the way, handled the horse gearlessly that I got scared and asked him to let me drive, and I got on the right-hand side and drove. Cassin took two or three drinks from the bottle. He insisted in such streng terms that I took a drink abso.

We went on by Little Switzerland, and Cassin there tried to get some beer, but the proprietor would not let him have it and Cassin said, "If I was sober I could get it."

After getting about a half or three-quarters of a mile beyond Little Switzerland. Cassin pulled a plstol from his back pocket on the right and fired it over my head, "The horse jumped and I said. "Alph. for God's sake don't," but before I could finish he shot again. The horse was so frantic that I got him to stop, and when the horse quieted down I said, "I am going to get out and walk back." But before I could finish he shot again. The k-rise was so frantic that I got him to place he he were him and Martin. C

"A Quarterfor wo or inks."

Cassin said: "It sln't $2 you want; it's the quarter o get two drinks."

I replied, in a playful way, "Oh, you go to hell, Alph!" and continued my conversation with Captain Lyle. The first thing I knew Cassin had come over to where I was and knocked my hat off. Captain Lyle or Mr. Crow handed me my hat and I said: "Alph, why do you do me this way; do you want to insult me?" Cassin said. "Yes, damm you, if you want to take it that way," and came around and slappedmy jaws and wrung my ears. I was sitting down and told Cassin that anybody who would do that was a coward. I told him I was not physically able to fight him and was not armed. I had been in a railroad wreck and had my whole side mashed and was physically a wreck. I tole Cassin that as he seemed bent on having a fight ail the afternoon, we could get guns and fight it out. I also said, "You have threatened me."

Cassin replied, "You are a damued coward. "A Quarcerfor two or inks."

Cassin replied, "You are a damned cowardly s- of a b-." Captair Lyle and Mr. Crow asked him to remembered all of Cassin's threats, his desperate character, and the fact that he had a pisrol in his pocket. Cassin continued and sain: "Damn you, I can sich you down and sain: "Damn you, I can sich you down and sainy your life out." He then pulled out a knife, opened it and offered it to me. I knew he had the pistol, and the idea struck me instantly that if I took the knife he had all the excuse he wanted to shoot me down.

I said to him, "I would be a pretty fool to take your knife, wouldn't I?"

The only retraction that I heard Cassin make was in saying to Captain Lyle and Mr. Crow he would bar my mother, but would take back nothing else.

He said that if I was not satisfied with that he would d—n soon satisfied with that he would d—n soon satisfy me.

I remained only a short time, and as I left I noticed Cassin's eyes follow me to the door. I was greatly excited and feared danger to my self. The whole matter began to prey on my mind. I thought of Cassin's threats and abuse of me: of his interference in the Martin matter; of his firing his pistol over my head; his telling me that I would come home toes up, and again bringing up this Martin matter and telling me there were lots ofthings I would not live to learn; I concluded that Martin and Cassin had been consulting together and would act together against me and might take advantage of me and kill me.

"I Was Afraid to Meet Cassin."

I was afraid to meet Cassin."

I was afraid to meet Cassin while I was unarmed and concluded to arm myself. He was physically my superior and had a pistol in his pocket. I went to William Boggan to borrow a pistol, but he had hone. I spoke to Miller at the Kimball house, but neither had a pistol. I met Mr. Ed Holland at the Kimball house and after walking up to Brettenbucher's and taking a drink, I asked him if he had a pistol. Holland said he could get a pistol from a fribad and I walked up Marietta street and I stopped at the postoffice, where I had a letter to mail, and waited until Holland came back with the pistol, which he had gotten a little piece up the street. "I Was Afraid to Meet Cassin."

f then told Holland about the difficulty, and I then told Holland about the difficulty, and for the first time told him who it was with. I told him I could not afford to be on the streets unarmed and in danger of meeting these men. Holland said he was as good or better friend to Cassin than to me, and he thought he could go down and straighten matters out and put Cassin in a peaceable mood with me.

He said that Cassin would fight anybody if

He said that Cassin would fight anybody if he took a notion, and would shoot in a minute, but if I got at him right he could be quieted. He told me all about being with Cassin a few months before at the National hotel, when Cassin tried to shoot a man, but in drawing his pistol from his pocket Cassin shot himself in the leg. Holland said he had then quieted Cassin down, and helped carry him to Avary's drug store to have his leg dressed. He told me if Cassin was talked to right, the thing might be smoothed over and the fuss stopped. He said unless it was fixed up, there might be trouble with him.

"Holland Would Fix It." I told him all right, but that he had bette

"Holland Would Fix It."

I told him all right, but that he had better go and see Cassin first, as I was afraid that Cassin would kill me on sight if I went there before I could explain why I came. Holland and myself walked down Alabama street, and at the corner of Loyd street I stopped and Holland went on toward the stable. I walked toward the carshed, but a train I wished to see a man on had not come in, and I came back. After Holland was gone awhile I went toward the stable. I intended to speak pleasantly to Cassin and confirm the Ialk that I knew Holland would have with him—that I wanted to be on peaceable terms. It was my best chance to settle the trouble. I got to the door of the office and Cassin was standing with his back to the wall and facing the door that I entered. He was talking to Holland quietly, and I though things were all right. As I entered the door Cassin glanced at me and I said, "Hello, Alph."

As soon as I said this Cassin turned diagonally towards me, threw his right hand under his coat, and ran it into his right hip pocket. Gentlemen, it was the very pocket from which I had that evening seen him pull his pistol.

"Would Cost Me My IMe."

"Would Cost Me My Life." I knew that a moment's delay would cost me my life, and that no explanation was then possible. I drew my pistol from my pocket, cocking it as I drew it, and fired without tak-ing any, aim at all. It all happened in a few seconds, and I did not book whether my nor struck Cassin or not:

Seeing that he was still attempting to draw his pistol. I did not feet that I could take any chances, and cocked my pistol again, fearing that Cassin, desperate as I knew him to be, might shoot me yet.

But in another moment he raised his hand to his breast and I saw he was shot. I immediately lowered my pistol, saying as I did so, "Alph, never try to take another man's life."

If was not my intention to take Cassin's life, and I would not have shot if I had not seen he was on the point of shooting me. I had no desire to kill him or any one else. I regret sincerely that it had to be done, but it was a question between my life or that of Alph Cassin, and that smestion I had to stated my reasons for returning to the sta-ble.

I knew that Cassin had attempted re kill a

I knew that Cassin had attempted it kill a number of people for the alightest causes and that he had no scruples about taking any man's life. I knew that a great part of the time he was so much under the influence of whisky as to be very dangerous, and I resolved that I could not safely live in Atlanta with him unless we had a peaceable settlement of the matter. I concluded that it was best to face him for a few moments, dangerous as he was, than to live in constant apprehension of danger and death from him. I knew of a number of versoas that Cassin had tried to kill. I had heard of his shooting three or four times at Mr. B. A. Warlick some time since. I had heard that he tried to shoot Tom Bodd with a pistol. I heard that he tried to cut Will McMillan with a kelfe. I knew of his trying to shoot a man at the National hotel for a most trifling cause, and shooting himself in the leg as he drew his pistol. I knew that he was armed that evening, and, in fact, he always went armed. I knew he was a man I could take no chances with.

"Ed Holland Is Here Now."

Ed Holland is here and knows that everything is as I have stated. What happened in the saloon on Pryor street was in the presence of Mr. Perino Jordan, and he is here in court and will tell the same thing.

Tom Dodd was at the Kladbul house when Cassin and I met, and heard what I have stated. He is here in court, and was sworn as a witness by the state. I feel that I am innocent of any crime.

I was treated by Cassin as no other man ever was. I have had three or four opportunities to escape, but feeling my innocence have not done so. Upon one occasion several prisoners escaped and the jail door was open before me and the jailers were locked in the the Evidence in Rebuttal. The reading of the defendant's statement by himself occupied but a short while, and the state began to introduce evidence in rebuttal immediately.

The first witness was John Martin, who denied the entire story of Stocks, inasmuch as Stocks stated that he was too intimate with Mrs. Porter Stocks. Martin stated that his acquaintance with Mrs. Stocks was very slight, and that he had boarded at Lithia Springs at the same hotel.

"He never at any time spoke to me, said the witness, "about his wife. I me him on the street once, and he said that he was going to buy some morphine. I told him not to, that he was too drunk, and not to do it. He then kept saying that him not to, that he was too drunk, and not to do it. He then kept saying that he was going to slap somebody's face, and I asked him if it was mine, and he replied maybe. He said that if he had a gun he would shoot my heart out, and drew a knife, which I took away from him and afterwards gave back to him. He afterwards apologized to me." wards apologized to me Holland Was Slightly Agitated

The next witness was P. J. Fitzgerald, The next witness was P. J. Filzgerald, who worked in S. T. Grady's saloon at the time of the killing of Cassin by Stocks. He said that Ed Holland came into the saloon about ten minutes to 7 o'clock and took a drink of whisky. Somebody came by and said that Porter Stocks had shot Alph Cassin. Holland then exclaimed: "For God's sake, don't say I was in here." He then took another drink. Two Negro Witnesses.

Celie Moultrie, a negro who worked at Redd's stables at the time of the shooting. testified that he saw no pistol on Cassin, but on cross-examination said that he did not search for any weapon.

Charley Zachry testified that he heard the pistol shot and rushed to the stable office, and, just as he was going in, a man ran out and nearly ran over him. He didn't know anything about him except that it was a white man. Had never seen nim before or since. For Both State and Defendant.

Mr. T. C. Dodd was the next witness, and is the only one who was summoned by both the state and the defense. both the state and the defense.

"I saw Cassin and Stocks together," said Dodd, "at the Kimball house on the morning of the day of the shooting. Cassin began to reprove Stocks about the trouble that he had with Martin. Stocks asked him if he wanted to take it up. Cassin replied that he did not. Stocks then told him to keep his mouth shut; that he had apologized to Martin, and that the trouble only concerned Martin and himself. Cassin only concerned Martin and himself. Cassin told him that if he kept on abusing people like he had Martin that he would plugged, yet get plugged, yet."

On cross-examination, he said:
"We all three walked out of the Kimball house and stopped at the entrance of the Metropolitan hotel. After we got to the Metropolitan, Cassin invited me to go to ride with him, but I declined, as it was too cold. Stocks then spoke up and said that he would go. Cassin asked him who had invited him. Stocks replied that he invited himself; and we all laughed. They then wanted me to go and take a drink, cross-examination, he said: then wanted me to go and take a drink, Cassin doing the inviting, but I refused, and told them that they would end in a fight if they didn't watch out.

W. H. Myers's Testimony Read.

W. H. Myer's Testimony Read.

Mr. W. H. Myers was attending a funeral, and, by the consent of both sides, his testimony was read. It referred to the fact that the witness had helped remove Cassin upstairs, and had not seen any weapon.

R. T. Shumate, John McWaters, Mark Goldsmith, Professor W. M. Slaton and W. A. Long were witnesses who testified as to the peaceable character of Cassin, Court then adjourned until 2 o'clock, as the state had several witnesses who were absent.

The Afternoon Session. The first witness in the afternoon session was John W. Humphries, who testified as to the good character and the reputation that Cassin had as a peaceable man. Fred Cooper's interesting Testimony. Mr. Fred Cooper, the brother of Hon. J. T. Cooper, was the next witness for the prosecution. In answer to questions, Cooper said:

"I knew Cassin for ten years, and was a good friend of his. I had a fight with him about three years ago, just after dark, between the union depot and the Kimbati nouse. We fought with our fists, and I guess I got a little the best of it. Yes best of it. Yes, I suppose that I am a right healthy boy. I saw Cassin the next morn-ing, and when he caught sight of me he quickened his pace and started for me. I duckened his pace and started for me. I knew what was coming and got ready. We fought again, and I think that I got the best of the fight again. That night we had another fight. I was sitting in a barroom when Cassin came in with Hinton Wright, I think, and said to me: Fred, you've whipped me twice; if you whip me the third time we'll make friends.' We then mingled and when they pulled me off he offered me his hand and we made friends. Yes, on the first fight I struck him with a ring, I and when they pulled me off he offered me his hand and we made friends. Yes, on the first fight I struck him with a ring, I think, and it cut his face. I knocked him down and he couldn't get up."

On the cross-examination Cooper said: "Cassin would fight as quick as any man. We had a little dispute. and while we were walking along we decided to settle it on the spot; we stopped and squared off and fought."

Cooper was asked if he didn't know that he was the best man in Atlanta, physically, and if it wasn't true that he had whipped two or three policemen on one occasion. He said that he once held three policemen a stand off.

Alta. H. R. Echols, Cassin's Stater.

The name of Mrs. H. R. Echols was

The name of Mrs. H. R. Echols was called and she appeared in court, escorted by her father. Her daughter, a beautiful young lady, was with her. The object of the introduction of Mrs. Echols was to prove the dying statement of Cassin. To this the defence objected. Solicitor Hill argued for his side of the question, and tried to make it plain to Judge Clark that he merely desired to use the dying declaration to rebut the statement of Stocks in regard to the position of Cassin, Judge Clark refused to overrule the objection of the defendant, and Mrs. Echols came down without having testified to anything new. The cross-examination was very short and Hon. J. T. Glenn told her to come down. Mrs. Echols ignored him completely and asked Solicitor Hill if she should come down.

Mr. Harry Cassin then took the stand and testified that he was present when his brother was undressed and that he saw no pistol or other weapon, except the little knife. He then put on the coat of his brother and the jury was shown the bullet hole by the attorneys for the state.

Argument Was Begun. Argument Was Begun.

Argument Was Begun.

Immediately after Harry Cassin finished his testimony Mr. Reuben Arnold began the opening speech for the defense. He first directed Judge Clark's attention to some points of law which he read. He first read some law involving defining the meaning of self-defense. He then referred to the law in regard to dying declarations. In the course of his eloquent argument the brilliant young lawyer spoke on the line that the strongest case that the state hoped to make was that of manslaughter. He took the witnesses up one by one and to make was that of manslaughter. He took the witnesses up one by one and showed the weak points in their testingony. He was especially severe with Baird, whom he handled with gloves off. He declared that he did not believe that Baird saw the shooting at all, but that he was made to believe that he had witnessed all that transpired. He laid great stress upon the fact that Baird had come from Tennessee to Georgia to testify in this case, and that he was getting enormous expenses, the payment of which enabled Baird to color his testimony to suit the purpose of the state. Mr. Reuben Arnold spoke for about two hours and made a fine impression.

Court then adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning, when that able lawver. Colonel W. C. Glenn, will present to the inry the case the state claims to have made out.

Georgia.

City Council of Augusta v. Cone et ux. Before Judge Eve. City court of Richmond county.

The declaration set forth a cause of action, and there was no error in overruling the demurrer.

Judgment affirmed. John S. Davidson, for plaintiff in error.

W. K. Miller and F. H. Miller, Jr.,

Pettyjohn v. Liebscher. Principal and surety. Consideration. Promissory surety. Consideration. Promissory

1. Where one who is really surety for another gives a promissory note in dis-charge of the obligation in its original form, and the obligation has already been discharged by the principal debtor, the surety being ignorant of the fact, the note so given by the latter is without consideration, whether the maker had or had not inquired of the principal debtor to ascertain ther the original debt still subsisted or ad been paid.

-2. A recipt on a promissory note in these words: "Paid by a sale of stock on this note, $2,666," signed by the holder of the note and attested by a witness, is not a note and attested by a witness, is not a bill of sale or written contract of sale.

3. In a contest between two persons as to the value of certain property which one of them had held for the other in a fiduci-ary character, and for which the former was bound to account, what the property brought at a rax sale at which the person entrusted with it became the purchaser, is not admissible in his favor either to show independent title in himself, or to show the of the property at the time he re-it. On the theory that the holding not upon a trust or agency, but upon atract of purchase made several mouths tously to the date of the tax sale, the rule would prevail.

4. Where property is turned over by a debtor to his creditor to be sold by the latter and the proceeds applied to the debt, the balance, if any, after satisfying the debt, to be returned to the debtor, the custodian of the property, if he faithfully executed the trust, is not chargeable with its value, but only with the proceeds realized from the sale or which might have been in the sale, or which might have been ized by him in the exercise of proper gence. If he converts the property to own use, he is chargeable with its actual value.

5. It was error, in charging upon the cred-bility of witnesses, to instruct the jury:
"You may even consider their character for truth and veracity, if it be known to you."

Ladwent reversed. Judgment reversed.
W. K. Miller, for plaintiff in error.

M. P. Foster, contra.

Greenwich Insurance Company vs. Sabotnick. Insurance. Partnership. Agency. Burden of proof. Before Judge Eve. City court of Richmond county.

Where G. & D., as partners under that style, were agents of an insurance company when a policy of insurance upon a stock of goods was issued by the company through them, and they afterwards dissolved, and G. ceased to represent the company but continued in the insurance agency business at the same place as a member of a new firm, using the style of G. & Co., and the insured applied to G. for additional insurance on the same property, producing at the same time the former policy, which G. examined, and thereupon issued another policy in a different company, which G. & Co. then represented, signing that policy with the name of the new firm, these facts did not amount to a consent by the first insurance company that the insured might obtain the additional insurance embraced in the second policy. As G.'s agency for btain the additional insurance embraced obtain the additional insurance embraced in the second policy. As G.'s agency for the first company had terminated, he had no authority to represent that company, and the burden of verifying his authority and the burden of verifying his authority was upon the insured, the policy on its face declaring that it would be rendered void by procuring further or additional insurance, unless by agreement endorsed upon or annexed to the policy. The ignorance of the insured that the first firm was dissolved, or that G.'s agency was in fact terminated, would not vary the relative rights of the parties.

rights of the parties.

Judgment reversed.

Henry Jackson and J. R. Lamar, for plaintiff in error.

C. H. Cohen, contra.

Miller, trustee, et al. v. Smythe. Trust. Landlord and tenant. Damages. Negli-gence. Before Judge Eve. City court of gence. Before Judge Eve. City court of Richmond county.

1. Where a trustee legally and rightfully assumes in his representative capacity the relation of landlord, he is liable, in that capacity, to answer to the tenant for the violation of any duty which the general law attaches as an incident to that relation. Accordingly where a trustee, duly authorized, rented a store belonging to the trust estate, and in the contract of rental agreed to keep the shelving in the store in thorough order and repair, the trust estate is liable for damages occasioned by his failure so to do:

so to do:

2. Whether or not there was negligence on the part of the plaintiff crusing or con-tributing to the injury complained of, is a question for the jury, the declaration im-puting negligence to the defendant, and not conceding directly, or by necessary impli-cation, any on the part of the plaintiff.

Judgment affirmed.

Joseph R. Lamar, for plaintiffs in error.

William K. Miller, contra.

Cumingham, et al. v. Elliott, agent. Certio-rári. Practice. Frivate wav. Principal and agent. Before Judge Falligant. Chatcumingham, et al. v. Elliott, agent. Certiorari. Practice. Iqvivate wav. Principal and agent. Before Judge Falligant. Chatham superior court.

1. Where the right to a certiorari is given by statute to either party, each may have the writ in his own favor in the same cause, and the pendency of the first writ sued out is no ground for dismissing the second.

2. Where the claim of right to a private way is founded upon an uninterrupted use of the way for more than seven years by the owners of a certain plantation, their agents, servants and tenants, the right is not in the agents or servants themselves, but in the owners who alone are the persons injured by an unlawful obstruction of the way, as against agents and servants, in violation of the right. Awhile their agent, by virtue of section 2207 of the code, may commence and carry on a proceeding in their names to remove such obstruction, under section 738 of the code, he cannot institute and carry on a proceeding for that purpose in his own name, either individually or as agent.

3. When in a petition to remove an obstruction from a private way, the petitioner alleges that he is the duly nuthorized agent of the owners of a certain plantation, naming it; that he has been in the habit of using the private way, describing it; and that the said owners, their agents, servants and tenants had been in constant and uninterrupted use of the way for more than seven years before the erections of the obstruction complained of, the petition is properly construed as being brought by the petitioner, not in his individual right, for he sets out none, but as agent for the owners, and in their behalt. This being so, the petition was fatally defective, the petitioner showing no right to maintain the proceeding, and it was error in the ordinary not to dismiss the petition on demurrer.

4. The superior court erred in not sustaining the certiorari brought by the de-demurrer.

4. The superior court erred in nor sustaining the certiorari brought by the defendant in the proceeding before the ordinary, and as that proceeding was fatally defective ab initio, this reversal operates to reverse the judgment of the superior court in so far as it sustained the certiorari brought by the plaintiff in said proceeding.

Judgment reversed.
T. M. Cunningham, Jr., for plaintiff in Edward S. Elliott, by brief, contra-Pullman's Palace Car Company v. Martin. Sleeping car company. Negligence. Practice. Before Judge MacDonald. City court of Savannah.

Whatever diligence a sleeping car company may owe a passenger in guarding and protecting her while she is asleep in the berth assigned to her, with her money and personal jewelry in a satchel, she having the satchel beside her in the berth between herself and the wall of the car, if the company so negligently and carelessly guard and protect her while sleeping that through its negligence the money and jewelry are and protect her while sleeping that through its negligence the money and jewelry are stolen from her and thereby wholly lost, she has a cause of action. Although the declaration in the present case is defective in not setting forth any particular act or omission constituting negligence, yet as there was no special demurrer on that ground, and as the declaration is good in substance, there was no error in overruling the demurrer to the declaration, upon which the court adjudicated.

Judgment affirmed.

Henry Jackson and Pope Barrow, for plaintiff in error.

Harden, West & McLaws, contra.

Berry v. the State. Criminal law. Burglary, Indictment. Ownership of Goods. Venue. Before Judge Wellborn. White

Venue. Before Judge Wellborn. White superior court.

1. It is not cause for arresting the judgment after a verdict of guilty of burglary, that the house alleged to be broken and entered is described in the indictment as "the storehouse of Woodlawn Leo and Macedonia Alliance co-operated store." Hatfield v. the State, 76 Ga. 499.

2. The description of the house being as stated above, and the evidence showing that the Macedonia Alliance had no ownership or interest in the house or the goods stored therein, the evidence failed to support the indictment; and there being no evidence that the house broken and entered was situated in the county in which the bill of indictment was found and the trial took place, the court erred in not granting a new trial.

THE CONSTITUTION: ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 1893

Via Western and Atlantic Rail-

St. Louis Railway to Chicago in Twentytwo Hours and Fifty-Eight

THE NASHVILLE, CHATTANOOGA AND

Commencing on Monday, June 5th, the Western and Atlantic railroad and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway inaugurated the quickest schedules ever made between Atlanta and Chicago.

President Thomas said that he had the short line between Atlanta and Chicago, and he intended to make whatever schedules might be necessary, not only to meet the competition, but to show his patrons that he appreciated their kindness by giv-that he appreciated their kindness by giv-ing them the quickest and best service be-tween Atlanta and Chicago.

The velvet vestibuled train leaves daily, Atlanta, 10 a. m.; leave Chattanooga, 2:42 p. m.; leave Nashville, 7:45 p. m.; leave Evansville, 12:45 a. m., and arrive at Chi-cago, 8:58 a. m., making the unprecedent-ed time of twenty-two hours and fifty-eight minutes from Atlanta to Chicago. This train will be vestibuled throughout, includ-train will be vestibuled throughout, includtrain will be vestibuled throughout, included time of twenty-two hours and fifty-eight minutes from Atlanta to Chicago. This train will be vestibuled throughout, including baggage, mail, express, day coaches and Pullman's finest sleepers.

In addition to this special vestibuled train to Chicago, the world's fair flyer, which formerly left at 2 p.m., leaves daily at 2:15 p.m., with solid train, composed of baggage, mail and express cars, day coaches and Pullman palace sleeper.

This train runs solid from Atlanta to Louisville, and the sleeper on tahis train will go through from Atlanta to Chicago without change, via Monon route. This solid train from Atlanta to Louisville connects in the union depot at Louisville with both the great Pennsylvania line and the Monon route. Leaving Atlanta at 2:15 p.m., via this route, you will arrive at Chicago the next afternoon at 5:30 p. m.

The third train which the Western and Atlanta to rairoad has for Chicago leaves Atlanta at 8:20 p. m., and arrives at Chicago the next evening at 9:40 p. m. This train runs solid from Atlanta to Nashville, and connects in the union depot at Nashville with through trains from Nashville, and connects in the union depot at Nashville to Chicago without change, and carries a Pullman buffet sleeping car through from Atlanta to Chicago, via Louisville and the Pennsylvania lines, without change. The morning express will leave Atlanta at 8 instead of 8:20, as heretofore, and will arrive at Nashville at 7:15 p. m., making all local stops as at present.

Mr. Charles E. Harman, general passenger agent of the Western and Atlautic railroad, says that his world's fair information to parties who contemplate a visit to Chicago, as to routes, rates, hotels and boarding houses. Besides the number of hotels in Chicago, of which he has a list, he has also obtained, through reliable information, the addresses of fifteen or twenty boarding houses, which he is furnishing to the patrons of the Western and Atlantic railroad upon application.

He has issued a reat little circular giving important world's fair

It looks now as though the railroads had determined to maintain the rates as named, and will have a war of schedules instead of a war of rates. HOW THE CHINAMEN SMOKE OPIUM.

The Detectives Say That Many Young Men in the City Visit the Joints, but the Chinamen Deny It.

When Chief of Detectives Wright called the attention of the council to the fact that there were two opium joints in operation in this city he created something of a sensa tion. Since the publication of his letter there has been much talk about the joints, and Captain Wright has been plied with inquiries concerning them. Chief Wright stated yesterday that he had referred the matter to Chief Connolly, and the department was waiting for the council to pass an ordinance regarding the joints before any action was taken concerning

In company with Detective Looney a In company with Detective Looney a Constitution reporter visited the two Chinese resorts which have been pointed out to Captain Wright as opinin dens. The first place visited was Sam Sing's laundry, in the Healy building, on Marietta street. In the front part of the room occupied by the laundry were two Chinamen, who objected to the reporter and detective going into the rear of the building.

The rear room is a dark apartment, furnished with a stove, some rough furniture and two wide and very flat beds. Un one of the beds Lee Sing, a venerable Chinaman.

The curiously-shaped pipe was held over an alcohol lamp, and between the lamp and the opening in the pipe the smoker held a small pill of opium on the end of a long needle. He drank in the fumes of the drug with great delight, not even looking up when the detective and reporter entered. He finished his smoke and climbed down from the hard board bed.

ished his smoke and climbed down from the hard board bed.

"Me fleel gloodee," said he with a grin of delight in answer to a question. He kindly volunteered to show his visitors how the opium pills were prepared, and when he was asked for permission to hit his pipe he smiled doubtfully and looked around. He wanted to know if any one else was coming in. He evidently was not prepossessed in favor of the detective and reporter, and shook his head. He at first denied that favor of the detective and reporter, and shook his_head. He at first denied that "Melican men" hit the pipe in his establishment, declaring that it made them sick. But Detective Looney mentioned the names of several young men who had been reported as frequent hitters of the pipe, and the shrewd Sing smiled, but shook his head. No amount of persuasion would induce him to allow either the reporter of detective to the higher Sing is an invotorate smoker. to anow either the reporter of detective to try his pipe. World's Congress of Homeopathists.

A meeting of this congress was held in connection with the exposition in Chicago last week, and was a large gathering of physicians and surgeons from this and other countries. Much good work was done and much entituslasm was felt as evidence of the prosperity of this school of medicine was shown. The greatest progress was shown in this country, where there are now about 12,000 physicians of the homeopathist faith. The American Institute of Homeopathy also met during the same week. Its meeting next year will be at Denver, Col.

Reports show twenty homeopathic medical colleges and twenty-seven journals; eighty-eight homeopathic hospitals and fifty-two dispensaries. The Southern Homeopathic Medical Association, which also met during the same week in Chicago, will meet in Chattanoga in November. World's Congress of Homeopathists.

Rocked on the Crest of the Wave

The landsman, tourist or commercial traveler, speedily begins, and not only begins, but continues, to feel the extreme of human missery during his transit across the tempestuous Atlantic. But if, with wise prescience, he has provided himself with a supply of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, his pangs are promptly mitigated, and then cease ere the good ship again drops her anchor. This is worth knowing, and thousands of our yachtsmen, summer voyagers, tourists and business men do know it.
